COLOSSEUM.

"I Live in Grosvenor Square," a brilliant new Associated British picture, produced and directed by Herbert Wilcox and starring Anna Neagle, Rex Harrison, Dean Jagger and Robert Morley, comes to the Colosseum on Monday. This is the first British picture to tell a story of Anglo-American relationships and is based on the diary of an American airman billeted in Grosvenor Square and his impression of Britain and its people. His romance with the granddaughter of the Duke of Exmoor, and the triangular complication that follows are told in the true Herbert Wilcox style.

The supporting stars have been carefully selected and included are Nancy Price, Dame Irene Vanbrugh, Edward Rigby and Private Elliot Arluck (U.S. Army).
