IT'S YOUR FUTURE. IT'S YOUR CHOICE.

In this election all South Africans must ask themselves one question:

Which party – the ANC or the new National Party – has the leadership, the policy and the experience to make life better for me and my family?

Is the new South Africa going to create new, real and lasting jobs, which can only come from successful and profitable business – or is it going to destroy confidence and jobs?

Is the new South Africa going to create the wealth to build new houses, new schools and provide better health care – or is it going to be taken over by violent and extremist elements who would destroy, not build?

THE ANC

All of us can see today what the ANC would be like in government. You only have to look at what they are doing where they do have control – the violence and the intimidation. That is the ANC in action. If Mr Mandela cannot control these elements today, how will he control them if they are elected to Parliament and to government?

THE NEW NATIONAL PARTY

We have created an economy that is the envy of the rest of Africa and much of the rest of the world. We will continue along that path. Building factories, houses, schools, hospitals, universities – creating jobs and all the necessary infrastructure that goes with a modern and prosperous society.

We will build a peaceful South Africa where everyone who wants it, can share in the prosperity.

In this election there are two kinds of promises.

The promises of the new National Party are built on the rock of our free enterprise policies and our experience. Just as we kept our promise to abolish apartheid and bring about free and fair elections, so we will build a great South Africa.

The promises of the ANC are built on sand. They cannot keep their promises. They do not know how.

Don't just hope for a better life, vote for one. Vote for FW de Klerk and the new National Party.
