

Forest murmers . by Wagner

Siegfried is resting underneath one of the great forest trees . he has arrived at the dragon's ^{cave} but before he blows his challenge ^{to the dragon} his journey has made him tired & so he just rests & listens - like you will listen ^{to} the beautiful sounds of the forest.

(~~demonstrate~~)
He thinks of his mother - the mother he has never seen . he listens to the birds & he wishes he could hear what they are saying about & it is only after he has slain the dragon & has tasted a drop of his blood that his ears are suddenly opened to what the forest murmers & what the birds are saying - (you will find it all in the story of "The Ring" that immortal work of Richard Wagner) -

They tell of the mountain surrounded by fire as which Brunnhilde lies in her long sleep he asks ^{one of} the birds to show him the way to the flaming mountain & she flies before him leading him there -

325 WEST ADAMS BOULEVARD
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA
RICHMOND 7893

[Handwritten signature in blue ink, possibly reading "C. J. ..."]