Vera Kanevska and Paul Breitman.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL PRODUCTION.

The Zionist Hall was again filled to capacity on Saturday night when Vera Kanevska, Paul Breitman and company staged a musical melodrama, "The Forgotten Mother." The theme was that of the mother who sacrifices her own happiness for that of her children, and it made a profound appeal to the audience. Vera Kanevska sang several songs which evoked great applause.

The principal parts were excellently played by Vera Kanevska, Paul Breitman and Max Shadovich, who caused much amusement. The other members of the cast were N. Wollach, S. Rechtenberg, N. Toyk, J. Chanarin, R. Turok, B. Nathan, A. Radowsky, J. Isaacson, J. Leibowitz, Hennie Breitman.

The play was repeated on Monday and Thursday nights and drew large audiences.

ROYAL

Allan Jones and Judy Garland, "sweet and hot" songster stars of the screen, are teamed for the first time in "Everybody Sing," a mad and tuneful story of the lives of a family of theatrical folk, starting at the Royal Theatre on Monday next.

Prominent in the large cast are Fanny Brice, incomparable comedienne, Billie Burke, veteran charmer of such successes as "Topper," Lynne Carver, a beautiful young actress, and Reginald Gardiner.

COLOSSEUM.

A new style of screen courtship is previewed in RKO Radio's "Bringing Up Baby," which commences at the Colosseum on Monday next.

Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant, principals in the novel love affair, set a new dozen precedents, though for the average couple most of these are not recommended.

The romantic initiative is taken by Miss Hepburn, and the unsuccessful fleeing by Grant. The methods Miss Hepburn uses to bag her quarry are singularly unique.

PLAZA.

In response to innumerable requests "Three Comrades" will be shown at the Plaza to-day and to-morrow.

Commencing on Monday, "Of Human Hearts," Walter Huston's first screen appearance since his triumphs in "Dodsworth," is the attraction at the Plaza Theatre, with James Stewart, Beulah Bondi and an elaborate character cast.
