HIGHWAY TO FREEDOM.

Odeon and Curzon

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., returns to the screen as the swashbuckling hero of Edward Small's lavish production of the Alexandre Dumas classic, "The Corsican Brothers," which will be shown simultaneously at the Odeon Theatre, Sea Point, and the Curzon Theatre, Wynberg, on Thursday, 13th August. In this picture Fairbanks is starred in a dual role. His leading lady is Ruth Warrick and others who are featured in the supporting cast include Henry Wilcoxon, Akim Tamiroff, J. Carroll Naish, John Emery, H. B. Warner and Gloria Holden. The story of "The Corsican Brothers" involves a vendetta between two powerful Corsican families. The feud is carried on to the following generation, when the twin brothers of the destroyed Franchi family decide to avenge the murder of their parents by Baron Colonna. The settings are most lavish and spectacular. "The Corsican Brothers" was shown at a midnight preview on Monday to a crowded audience who were greatly impressed.

PLAZA.

"Highway to Freedom," now showing at the Plaza Theatre, is not a war film, but a timely and thrilling story with plenty of ingenious and human touches. The plot centres round Joe Smith (played by Robt. Young), a worker in an American airplane factory. His ability wins him an assignment on a new bomb sight, but it is such a responsible job that he must keep it a secret even from his wife and son. As he is driving home from work one night enemy agents kidnap him and, after binding his eyes, take him to their hideout, where they torment him in a desperate effort to get the secret of the new device. Joe eventually escapes by a ruse and tells Government men what has happened. There follow many exciting incidents, and in the end the gang of enemy agents is captured. Robert Young is supported by Marsha Hunt and famous "Crime does not pay" players.
