Cape Town's Opera Season.

Cape Town's Opera season opened at the Alhambra Theatre last night. The first production ever given in Cape Town of "The Bartered Bride" is the second opera of the season to be staged to-night. This was written by Smetana in 1824 and its first production was given in Prague in 1886. It has a Czech-Slovakian background and engaging music and is described as a comic opera. The story is one of simple folk and concerns a marriage contract that threatens to disrupt the happiness of a number of villagers until the revelation of a secret held by the hero brings all round.

The matinee to-morrow will be "Cavalleria Rusticana," an opera in one act by Mascagni, and the ballets "Prince Igor" and "Le Lac des Cygnes" as well as divertissements by the Cape Town Ballet Club for which special settings have been made by African Consolidated Theatres Ltd.

To-morrow night the opera will be "Madame Butterfly" and a different opera will be presented each evening next week.

ODEON and CURZON.

As from Wednesday, 14th April, the Odeon Theatre, Sea Point, and the Curzon Theatre, Wynberg, will simultaneously show the Artists' latest release, "Twin Beds." This funny and fast comedy, adapted from the Broadway stage hit, is produced by Edward Small. Featured are lovely Joan Benoit, George Brent and the lanky comedian, Richard Auer.

COLOSSEUM.

Another great novel, "The Gay Sisters," has been brought to the screen by Warner Bros., who are noted for their fine treatment of important novels. The picture, which is now at the Colosseum, has an exceptionally fine cast. In the leading role is fiery Barbara Stanwyck as the eldest of the three Gaylord sisters, a level-headed person who thinks that sentiment is a silly emotion. Her two sisters, the other members of the Gaylord family, are played by Geraldine Fitzgerald and Nancy Coleman. Gig Young makes his debut as a young artist and is said to be a sensation. George Brent plays the role of a civil engineer in his usual forceful manner.

PLAZA.

Neither the blackout nor other war conditions have kept crowded houses from seeing "Me and My Gal" at the Plaza. Now in its second week, it is a show everyone can thoroughly enjoy.

"Alibi" will be the next picture at the Plaza. This is one of the most ambitious productions to come from a British studio and boasts an unusually large starring cast. Margaret Lockwood, Hugh Sinclair, James Mason and Raymond Lovell have the leading roles in this thrilling mystery drama, which is based on the French film "L'Alibi," a picture which created a tremendous impression at the time of its release.

ROYAL.

"The Day Will Dawn," which comes to the Royal Theatre on Monday next, is the drama of a Fleet Street war correspondent's adventures in Norway, before and after that unhappy country's engulfment by Hitler's field-grey hordes. Long before the invasion he discovers that the Nazis are operating U-boats from a remote fjord, and is later able to assist Admiralty and Bomber Command in the destruction of this secret base. This action brings the whole force of the vicious Nazi machine into play. Running through the narrative is the theme of a free Norway—the dawn of a day of liberty for the oppressed peoples who bear humiliation with fortitude, knowing full well that the Nazi overlords will ultimately be overthrown.
