PLAZA.

"To-Morrow We Live" has been attracting crowded houses this week which is not surprising. Authentic and without exaggeration it shows what is going on where it is least expected. A picture concerning patriots in uniform.

Commencing Monday Hedy Lamarr appears in one of the most exciting roles in her entire career, teamed with Walter Pidgeon in playing the sultry jungle charmer, Tonto, in "White Cargo." As the fascinating exotic native siren she captivates Richard Carlson and precipitates a stark drama of human emotions, set deep in a jungle rubber plantation in Africa. Authentic settings add the vital force of the tense drama of conflict, mystery and romanticism.

ROYAL.

The pretty girl in "The Affairs of Martha," which commences at the Royal Theatre on Monday night, writes a book about her socially prominent employers and totally undermines a whole community. Marsha Hunt personates the talented maid in a swank Island home over which Melville Cooper and Spring Byington preside with tremendous authority. The manner in which this complicated situation is happily cleared, goes to make one of the most amusing pictures of the season.

ODEON and CURZON.

The current feature "Orchestra Wives," which stars Glenn Miller and his band, Charles Brothers, Ann Rutherford, George Montgomery and a host of others, will be shown at both Theatres, the Odeon and Curzon, by 20th Century-Fox's comedy dance "Girl Trouble." It tells the story of Pedro Sullivan (Don Ameche), handsome of a wealthy South American coffee and rubber planter who comes on a visit to New York. Joan Bennett is anxious to meet him and when she learns that Don has taken an apartment in Park Avenue, she meets him but pretends to be the maid; she burns his toast, presses his hat, turns out his girl friends to keep him out of "Girl Trouble."

COLOSSEUM.

As timely as the headlines is the completely absorbing adventure film which comes to the Colosseum Theatre on Monday. Titled "Desperate Journey," it tells the story of five members of a British Flying Fortress crew who are shot down in Germany and their adventurous journey across Europe toward safety.

In the leading roles are Errol Flynn and Ronald Reagan, both of whom give excellent performances. Other members of the crew are played by Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy and Ronald Sinclair. They are taken to an intelligence officer, played by Raymond Massey for questioning.

ALHAMBRA.

William Holden and Frances Dee share stellar honours in Columbia's zestful new romantic comedy, "Meet the Stewarts," which opens at the Alhambra to-morrow and which is based upon Elizabeth Dunn's famous
