Johannesburg Symphony Concert

A pleasing innovation of the Sunday Night Symphony Concerts, is that they are short enough to appeal to a larger section of the public.

The programme of last Sunday night's concert at the Empire commenced with the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart, which was well received by the audience. Miss Watkins sang Weber's Aria "Leise, leise," from "Der Freischutz." This was well sung, but Miss Watkins's voice was not powerful enough for the encore "Ocean, thou mighty Monster."

The concert concluded with Dvorak's "New World Symphony." The orchestra is to be complimented on its performance of this Symphony. It was lovely, particularly the Largo.
