

ment sources.

It will be followed next year by a new delimitation of parliamentary seats, with a general election proposed next November.

Government sources said a Cabinet reshuffle could not be divorced from proposals for the general election in 1987.

A rationalisation of Cabinet posts was expected to be announced by the State President, P. W. Botha.

South Africans — together We Will Build a Brighter Future" — has been severely criticised ever since the project was first announced — most criticism has centred around the cost of the project — which was originally given as R1,5 mil-company... terday that it would not grant the Bureau the right to release the song on record.

Mr Nel said at yesterday's conference: "I wish to make an appeal to those who seek peace and ion that he would lose his Ministerial post in an imminent Cabinet reshuffle, Mr Nel said it was the prerogative of the State President to make an announcement in this regard. He added jocularly:

the advertising time for the song, but this was not possible as the SABC would have had to cancel other paid advertisements

TO PAGE 2

Russia won't give

YOUR EVERY DAY
AND EVERY NIGHT
FOOD STORES.
WE SELL PEACE OF MIND
24 HOURS A DAY

THE CITIZEN

INCORPORATING THE FINANCIAL GAZETTE

Johannesburg Saturday 1 November 1986

Cover price: 30c
27 + 3c

The Franco
MASTERPIECE
will change
your lifestyle!

Look Younger — Create a New You
NO NEED TO BE BALD!
For a free consultation
Ring Paul 331-8662
Carlton Centre

PEACE SONG HITS DISC SNAG

Cabinet
shuffle
likely
this month

By BRIAN STUART

THE much discussed reshuffle of the Cabinet is expected to be announced before the end of November according to government sources.

CHARITY organisations stand to lose substantial financial contributions if record companies representing artists who recorded the Bureau for Information controversial song decide the song should not be released on record.

The Bureau's R4,3 million musical attempt at changing the attitudes of lion by the Deputy Minister of Information, Mr Louis Nel.

The idea was to contribute proceeds from the project to charity. However, some of the artists performing on the song are contractually bound to their record companies not to cut records elsewhere.

At least one record company told Sapa yes-harmony for our country to realise the importance of the message of this song.

"The time has come not to concentrate on those things that keep us apart. We have done so for decades.

"Rather, the time has come for us to concentrate on those things that bind us together."

Asked about speculation that he would lose his

"The State President won't sell me for a song."

The State President and the Cabinet had approved the 'peace song' and the expenditure involved, Deputy Information Minister Mr Nel said.

Mr Nel said the costs incurred in producing and publicising the song should be measured against the millions of rands used for projects to harm South Africa.

He had personally approached the SABC for free advertising time.