

TWO OF the top folk singers in South Africa, Dave Marks and Ritchie Morris, are at present appearing at the Palm Beach Hotel every night of the week. Dave, who won fame as the composer of "Master Jack", and Ritchie, one of the country's top singers, are performing many of their own compositions and really get the crowds going every night. They start playing every weeknight at eight in the Caribbean Lounge, where there is no cover charge. On Sundays from six they perform at the Totum discotheque at the hotel. There, if you pay 50 cents for a meal, you can listen to these two folk stars and a host of others, including popular Brian Finch, until nine o'clock.

TWO OF the top singers in South Africa, Dave Marks and Ritchie Morris, are at present appearing at the Pal Beach Hotel every night of the week. Dave, who won fame as the composer of "Master Jack", and Ritchie, one of the country's top singers, are performing many of their own compositions and really get the crowds going every night.

They start playing every weeknight at eight in the Caribbean Lounge, where there is no cover charge. On Sundays from six they perform at the Totum discotheque at the hotel. There, if you pay 50 cents for a meal, you can listen to these two folk stars and a host of others, including popular Brian Finch, until nin o'clock.

23 Dec, 1970 - 8 Jan 1971