tutor, play Schreiner; and Muffy, a role filled versatile Carol Trench. But perhaps the killer is Mr Clearwater (Richard Walne), Divine's agent, who had tried to put a stop to her show because no contract had been drawn up? Or was it the town waif and outcast, played by Belinda Henwood? And can we really rule out to accompanist by Justin Southey. "Justin is the only member from the original cast who has been in every production of Table Manners," says King, who is excited about the prospects of working with so talented a cast. original.
