

Dave sings again

Dave Marks makes one of his rare appearances these days as a singer at Sunday night's meeting of the Soiree Society. The young SAFMA chairman and composer of such songs as "Mountains of Men," "Master Jack" and "Cool, Clear, Calm and Still," will appear on the same bill as Colin Shamley, the unconventional singer-songwriter whose works range from the lyrical theme from the film, "Katrina" to off-beat ballads of protest and disenchantment, and Brian Bebbington, one of the country's foremost exponents of traditional and ethnic folk music and a highly accomplished musician, and a comparative newcomer to the local scene, John Oakley-Smith, who hails from Rhodesia and for the past few years has been a leading light in Eastern Cape folk circles. John is the composer of "God Keep the People," "Song to Iago" and "Boat Song."
