DAVID SCOBIE . . . a new name on the local hit parade scene . . . a name whose future prospects seem destined for the big time.

David became aware of music initially when he was five years old. His parents often took him to hear concerts of traditional Scottish music, and it was at this time that his interest began.

In February 1973, David arrived in Zimbabwe, and two years later began his local musical career when he joined the Beverley Rocks Motel Folk Club. It was here his interest became largely influenced by Iris Jones, a well-known local folk-singer.

Some time later, David started to introduce his own style of music when he began learning to play the guitar, and it was at the same time that Neil Diamond — the famous international singer/composer — was to have an effect on David's type of music due to the incredible similarity between their voices.

Realising the limitations to his own music if he sang only Diamond's songs, it was inevitable that David should start writing his own, and he was spurred on to do so when his father warned he couldn't write his own music. The result was David's very successful song, Don't Pass Me By. Since then, many songs have been penned by this talented young man.

David heard an advertisement on the radio which encouraged him to attempt a recording. Approached by Martin Norris, the Production Engineer at Shed Productions, a recording was made of David's most recent hit single, Gypsy Girl, (written by Martin) carrying Don't Pass Me By on the flip side.

A modest young man with ambitions to continue working hard at his music, future prospects for the very talented DAVID SCOBIE — guitar player, singer, composer — promise to be SENSATIONAL! ○
