A LESSON FROM ALOES.

This play by Athol Fugard is headed for London's National Theatre. It will be staged for a brief four week season Upstairs at the Market from May 19th. The cast that will perform both in London and at the Market: Marius Weyers, Shelagh Holliday and Bill Curry.

Since its world premiere at the Market Theatre in November 1978, A LESSON FROM ALOES has been presented in Cape Town, Montreal, and a production directed by Fugard is currently running in the Yale, where it has been highly acclaimed.

When it opened, the Johannesburg critics rated the play "spellbinding" and "remarkable". The Market production will be directed by Ross Devenish.

A DAY IN THE DEATH OF JOE EGG

The Company's production of Peter Nichols' warm, funny, compassionate and human play, A DAY IN THE DEATH OF JOE EGG will mark the first Johannesburg production of the work of one of Britain's top playwrights.

Described by the Observer as:

"A comedy, one of the funniest and most touching I've seen. A recital, interspersed with jazz, imitations and tap dances, about life with Joe Egg".

The production is directed by Roy Sargeant who received a Fleur de Cap Award last year. The cast is Danny Keogh, Sandie Dacombe, Bess Finney, Ron Smerczak and Leslie Nott.

FROM THE MARKET PLACE. . . . .

During April Michelle Smith joined the team at the Market as the Bookshop Organiser. If you have any ideas, enquiries or complaints phone her at the Market on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Our new Edwardian Bar is open. Positioned off the main foyer opposite the Bookshop, it promises to become the new talking point of the Market.

On Sunday, the 18th May the Wilba Music Group will present American Negro Spirituals at the Market Theatre at 15h00. Donations R2,50.

A LESSON FROM ALOES season at the National Theatre London has been virtually ensured by a big helping hand from UTA Airlines. We are still a little short of the total sum required for our airfares. Anyone who would like to help us, please contact Mannie Manim.
