and at a place within the Colony,—of this fact we shall no doubt shortly hear more. WE SHALL NOT ANTICIPATE STOCKENSTROM'S TRIUMPH!

The 'Velocity,' brought our London Papers up to 9th January. They do not contain any news of a decided nature, respecting the Canadian affairs. It would appear from them, that the President of the United States had formally and emphatically announced, "that he will enforce against all citizens of the Republic, whoever they may be, or on what side in politics, the laws which subject to fine and imprisonment; those who violate the obligation of the United States to a course of strict neutrality in the internal disputes of foreign nations."

From unfortunate Spain, it is mentioned, that the Carlist Chief was marching on the Eucorial, at the head of a column. The new Carlist expedition into Castile was on its march for the Ebro.

It is stated in a private letter from Madrid, that ESPARTEIRO's (the Christiano General) reply, to the notification that he had been named Minister of War, had in some quarters tended to confirm existing suspicions of his loyalty. He declined the appointment, "believing that he could be more serviceable to his country at the head of the army," and recommended that General LATORRE be appointed Minister of War.

We find it also reported in the papers, "that the English, displeased at the manner in which the Spanish Government executes the treaty concluded for the abolition of the Slave trade, have not only established a hulk in the harbour of Havannah, for the purpose of depositing the emancipated Slaves, but actually taken possession of Cayosal, on the Northern coast of Cuba, from which they expelled the Spanish authorities and inhabitants, with a view to establish there a depot on a larger scale."

We find nothing particular respecting the quarrel about the forest of Grunenwald, in Luxemburg, and the case appear, for the present, to remain in statu quo. A Correspondent from Paris thus expresses himself on this subject: "When lately the King of Holland proceeded to carry into execution that delicate operation, (cutting wood in that forest, which annual value of timber does not amount to £500,) if the Government of Belgium chose to make such a fuss about the matter, it is owing principally to the circumstance that the Belgian Chambers were then assembled, discussing the Budget, and that, to carry the doubtful vote of the expenses of the War Department, the Government of LEOPOLD found it convenient and useful to make a powerful impression upon the minds of the Representatives, as to the necessity of granting the supplies, however large, when a collision with King WILLIAM seemed impending over them."

In addition to what we already laid before our readers respecting the massacre &c. of our expatriated countrymen, we give the following letter of the Rev. F. OWEN, who was on the spot when the tyrant DINGAAN ordered the massacre of our fellow Colonists, as extracted from the Graham's Town Journal of the 5th instant:—

Port Natal, March 16, 1838.

"With great pleasure I acknowledge your kind letter, received by Mr. Hewatson. If I have not written to you at an earlier period, it is because I was a long time very unsettled; and now having just commenced my work and ministry at the Zoola capital, I am again at sea, in somewhat a restless and anxious state. Indeed I have been witness of events which cause every heart to shudder, and have in their consequences powerfully affected my mission to the heathen. You ask me for particular information concerning Mr. Retief, and how Dingaan acts towards him! You must ere this have heard reports of the cruel massacre of that worthy man and his party, who coming to Unkunkinglove to arrange with the chief for the purchase of land, were for the first few days of their visit hospitably entertained but finally in a most inhuman and treacherous way one and all murdered. About 60 farmers, in company with Mr. Retief, entered the town on Saturday February 3d. By permission they fired a salute with blank cartridge, after which the Zoolas danced. On Tuesday morning the business for which they came having been settled, Dingaan invited them to take leave of him. They all came unarmed into the cattle fold; a large regiment was ordered to dance, forming itself into a half moon as usual; the boers were surrounded, and the Chief gave orders that they should be seized. They were all, with children, servants, and interpreter, instantly strangled, and then dragged to a neighbouring hill to lie exposed! I was on the spot at the time. I was at my own house, which overlooks the town. Dingaan sent to inform me of the wicked deed at the moment he was committing it, assuring me of his good will towards me. The motive he assigned for this base action was, that they intended to kill him; but I have no doubt that under a mask of friendship, which he has put on, he was long before this visit planning their destruction. He appears to have been afraid of them. He looked upon such formidable neighbours with a jealous and suspicious eye, and therefore took the first favorable opportunity to slaughter a large body of them. He immediately sent out a large army to attack the camp. The account brought by a Natal resident, who was with the Dutch when this attack was made, states that 250 of the boers, (including women and children) were slain. These were surprised at break of day Saturday Feb. 16. The rest rallying, defended themselves, and the Zoolas flying were pursued with dreadful slaughter.—at least 500 of them were killed. You can in part conceive our feelings when we were first informed of the massacre of the boers, and when we saw the army go out to attack the camp. I could no longer stay with the Dutch, but can give you but a short account of his behaviour towards me on that trying occasion. I was charged before his great captains with speaking evil of him, calling him a murderer, and condemning him for his conduct in killing the Dutch. Witnesses were brought forward to prove me guilty; they testified amongst other things that in our family worship I always had the King in my heart, denouncing him as an evil-doer, &c. These witnesses were my native servants, who successively gave their evidence against me. Nevertheless, I was suffered to depart, at length in peace. Having crossed the Tugala, we again heard of wars and rumours of wars: the Natal people, black and white, were preparing themselves to act on the offensive. Having been so long accustomed to hear the praises of the Zoola monarch; to hear him exalted, for example, as one who was greater than the heavens,—more powerful than any chief on earth, it did not seem a little strange to hear another note last Sunday from a troop of black people, which was headed by a white man, singing in the native language—"the wild beast has driven us from our homes, but we will catch him." The army, a thousand strong, went out last Tuesday. Their immediate destination was to the neighbourhood of the Dutch camp; it was designated to act if possible, in concert with the boers.

LOSS OF THE MATILDA.

We have been favored with the following extract of a private letter, containing the particulars of the loss of the Matilda off Cape Recife:—

Port Elizabeth, April 3, 1838.

Brig Matilda, from Table Bay March 21, 1838, Captain Chas. Comin; passengers, Mr. Norton and family, Mr. McCrosty and servant, and 2 steerage passengers, on Monday, the 2d April, in rounding Cape Recife about four o'clock in the morning, struck on the outer rocks off Cape Recife, and in an hour and three quarters after, sunk in deep water, after coming off the rock; but fortunately the boats were got out in sufficient time to get all persons in the boats, amounting to 21, and was afterwards picked up, about One, P. M., by the bark Charles Dumergue, and all persons safely landed in the afternoon of Tuesday, the 3d April. No person saved anything from the wreck.

(Signed) CHAS. COMIN, Master.

We beg to call the attention of the Public in general to an Advertisement in this Day's Paper, calling upon the friends of humanity, to assist in raising a subscription for the benefit of the unfortunate Emigrant Farmers and others in the Territory of the tyrant DINGAAN. We deem it unnecessary, after what we have already laid before our readers on a former occasion, and in this Paper, respecting this sad disaster, to press upon them the necessity of immediately joining in this noble undertaking, and trust that they will liberally come forward and contribute their mite in furtherance of the object in view.—We only wish to add, for the information of those desiring elucidation on this head, that it is the intention to appropriate the contributions, for transmitting to the Emigrants the necessary ammunition, provisions, clothing, and an experienced Surgeon.—What can in their present trying situation be of better avail.

(From the "Graham's Town Journal" of 29th March.)

The following communication and enclosures have been obligingly transmitted to us by the Rev. William Shaw:—

To the Editor, Sir,—The enclosed extracts from two letters just received from Mr. Jenkins, the Wesleyan Missionary, at Buntingville, in Faku's country (Amapondas), will probably interest your readers. They refer to the late attack made by Faku and Capai upon the tribes near the Bashee river.

These letters, although of such recent date, make no mention of the unhappy occurrences said to have taken place recently in the Zoola country. It is singular that none of the English residing at Port Natal, should have communicated intelligence of the murder of Retief and party, by the usual overland route to the Colony, viz: by way of Buntingville and our other Missionary stations, along the coast of Caffraria.

As, however, Faku has now established himself on the other side of the Zimvubu, he has, perhaps, through some feeling of jealousy or fear, resolved on cutting off the communication betwixt Port Natal and the Colony; for which purpose it is not unlikely that he may have intercepted messengers sent from the white residents of Natal; I cannot, in any other way, account for our receiving no letters from that part of the country. I have written to beg that inquiries may be made of Faku and the other Chiefs, and if any important intelligence is received through that channel, you may rely upon its being speedily communicated to you for the information of the public.—I am, Sir, &c. W. SHAW.

Buntingville, March 6, 1838.

"The night after I left Butterworth, I arrived at home all well, though I had been exposed to great danger. Between Buntingville and Morley, about 12 o'clock at night, I unexpectedly fell in with Capai's army, who were encamped in our road for the night (John Burton, the interpreter, being with me). We passed several encampments without being heard or seen, for which I felt not a little thankful. But on descending into a small river, we came within a few yards of another encampment before we were aware of it. This set the people in great alarm, as they supposed we had come to re-take the cattle, it was in vain to tell them the contrary; they told us not to come nearer; so we had to ride off as quickly as possible, seeing it to be dangerous to parley with them. We again passed several other parties without being discovered. However, after having lost our way (for the night was very dark), and being drenched with rain, we came home all well with hearts overflowing with gratitude to God for having preserved our lives from savage men.

"The next morning some thousands of cattle passed the station, which had been taken by Capai. Faku had been also on the commando, but took no cattle, for which he seems not very well pleased with Capai. To-day cattle and men have been flying in every direction, in consequence of some cattle having been taken from the Amapondas, and a report that the English army is coming.

Faku has been here, and seems to be under great alarm, lest the English should join the Caffers against him. He has requested me to write to the Great Man (I suppose the Governor), to assure him of his friendly disposition to the English, and that he has only been on this commando against Unkuyi for having killed some men of his. He has also sent an Elephant's tooth to be presented to the Governor as a token of friendship."

Buntingville, March 16, 1838.

"Strange to tell you, the densely populated country of Amaponda land is now nearly left without an inhabitant, with the exception of the Mission Station, and a few poor women left to take care of such corn as had not been entirely destroyed by the drought. This extraordinary event took place last Saturday night and Sunday. Faku first commenced by setting fire to his own kraal, and then commanding his men to follow his example; which was soon done by many, and in a short time a great part of the country was illuminated with the burning of houses and kraals; the people appeared to be in the greatest consternation, flying in every direction, many not knowing the cause.

Faku sent me no intimation of the cause of this unexpected event; and all I could gather was, that it was reported, the English army was coming against Faku and Capai in consequence of their late aggressions on the people near the Bashee. This of course I contradicted; but, however, to no purpose; they were determined on following their Chief.

"I was near the sea when all this took place, but returned home immediately, and then sent men after Faku to know the news, and the cause of his flight, &c. The men returned last night. He says, 'He is afraid of the English—he has ascertained that the army is on this side of the Bashee in six divisions coming against him and Capai, and he flies out of the way. The school' (the mission), he says, is 'to sit quiet, as no harm will come to it, and in a few days he will send his word. He will not return, but remain in that part of the country, some distance over the Umsimoooboo.' Many of the people have gone as far as the river, but refuse to cross it, and talk of returning again. What the result of this will be I know not. However, 'God reigneth,' and no doubt all will end in the 'furtherance of the Gospel.' We have in consequence thereof a great acquisition to our numbers on the station, though I find Faku is not very well pleased that any of the people should come here.
