The pool was already there when I began to notice things. I too am Servys 60 (as I de Servys) my father bought Bordeaux. He's a hunchman,

I believe you a J. Morais about 1892 or 1893 when I first bought there, must have been in 1897 when I went down with S. Fabre in the first time - after that again during school holidays. I lived in England 1905 - 1906 and 1907 - 1908. Alroy 1900 was. School in Scotland 1903 and 1904.

I remember Dad's uncle David used to come every morning. Sometimes "Aunt," as they used to call by P. van Rynswald would join them.

I remember their was a were Rolley lines. They were removed years afterwards.
At the beginning, there was no subway under the railway line. We watched the trains, and then cinema over the line. The subway came later.

I think my father's uncle David did contribute towards improving this spot. I have an idea they built the first wall (the other walls were added later as the municipality). So that the men could shed their wet costumes and also have somewhere unseen!

I was not born at Bundeena but my brother was. It was sold, after my father passed away. He died which was in 1928.

I have remembered wonderful Bundeena about 1887 to 1888. 1892 to 1893.

The statement that there was a tunnel I do not think has any foundation. To my knowledge, he spoke of it but it was an idea to smooth the crossing of the roads and railway line to get to the ball's place. He lived in Balgowlah.
My uncle David lived with us for 11 years at Bordeaux. My father rebuilt his house after a few years when he bought it and made it very beautiful. He had workmen from Italy to do the mosaic. There was plenty of marble in his house. Stools, marble pillars, and the woodwork, staircases, panelling, and fireplaces were all beautifully carved.
