Latest Music.

Messrs. Augener, Ltd. have just issued a further fine batch of music and, once again, we can assure music lovers that they have every cause for satisfaction at the excellent fare offered them. Taking the songs first, four composers are featured. Peter Warlock has two songs, "The Singer" and "Late Summer," whilst the other composers whose works are included are: "A Mystical Song" by D. M. Stewart, "April Mist" by G. O'Connor-Morris and "The Refort Courteous" by Phyllis M. James. Then, coming to the pianoforte selections, here again, one must congratulate Messrs. Augener upon the excellent selections to suit all classes of players. Pride of place must be given to A. Herbert Brewer, who has a suite of four pieces under the title of "Summertime." The four of them are "Hop-Scotch," "In A Hammock," "Golliwog's Procession" and "A Short Life and a Merry One." John Ireland upon this occasion has a "Prelude in E Flat," Frank Bridge has a suite of two pieces entitled, "In Autumn," Gustave Lind has a "Valse-Impromptu," E. Beck-Slinn has "Four Sketches" for the piano, whilst Charles H. Lloyd's composition is entitled "Catch Me If You Can." F. W. Massi-Hardman has another characteristic piece called "Caravan." Alex Roloff has issued fifteen lyrics by Robert Schumann in "An Album for the Young." Whilst last but not least there are "Twenty Little Preludes" for the piano by A. Longo. Coming to violin and violincello music, in the former Adam Carse has easy duets for two violins entitled, "In Double Harness," "The Mimic" and "Two Abreast," in the latter, Ludwig Lebell has four short pieces for the violincello, "Couplet" and "Salterello." Finally, we have two compositions by Adam Carse for string orchestras or string quartettes, "Suite In G" and "Three Dances."

New Bijou. The Spoilers.

Messrs. Chappell & Co., Ltd.

Messrs. Chappell & Co., Ltd., publishers of the highest class of ballad music, as well as the most sensible type of lighter music, are once again to the fore and well up-to-date with their latest publications. At the present time the great musical attraction in London is the musical comedy, "No, No, Nanette," and two of the most popular numbers are "I Want to be Happy," and "Tea for Two." These two gems, Messrs. Chappell include in their latest list and also a new waltz founded on that popular song "I Love The Moon," the composer being none other than Paul A. Rubens. Coming to the ballad songs, three well known composers each have one new number included. The first is "Oh, For the Wings of a Swallow," by Hermann Lohr, the second is "The Valley of Roses" by Hayden Wood, and the third is "Love's Ecstasy" by Guy D'Hardelot.
