

Latest Music.

Messrs. Chappell & Co., Ltd., issue another eight very fine publications. First, there is a "Melody in C" for violin and pianoforte by Howard Talbot; a very fine characteristic composition by Rene Luciann entitled "Serenade Berceuse," and six high class ballad songs, two by Molly Carew entitled "Somewhere in this Summer Night" and "Canterbury Bells;" and one each by Cecil Baumer, "Spring, The Fiddler," H Lyall Phillips, "If All the World," Guy D'Hardelot, "Love's Ecstasy," and Eugene Lockhart, "The Way To Your Heart"

Messrs. Keith Prowse & Co., Ltd.

Messrs Keith Prowse are to be congratulated upon their new lighter numbers. Pride of place must be given to Dudley Glass's "Melody of Memories," a valse song. Then comes Gwen Farrar's latest "Did Tosti Raise His Bowler Hat (When He Said Good-Bye?)" whilst the Two Bobs are featured with their new song, "Way Out West in Kansas." Layton and Johnstone's "Alabama Bound," and last but not least, "Love's Lottery" from "Charlot's Revue."

Messrs. Lawrence Wright.

Messrs. Lawrence Wright's latest list of publications is well suited, to all tastes. Taking the ballad songs first there is James F. Hanley's "At The End Of The Road," which is being sung with great success by Talbot O'Farrell. Secondly, there is Horatio Nicholls' "Close In My Arms," and Thirdly there is Maurice Abrahams' "When the Gold Turns to Grey." Coming to the song-foxtrots one of the most popular for the coming season will be "The Toy Drum Major" composed by Horatio Nicholls, then there is "Shanghai" by the same composer, whilst other numbers included are as follows;—"Oh! How I Love My Darling," "The King Isn't King Any More," "A N'Egg and Some Ham and A N'Onion," "What A Life," and "I'll Take Her Back (If She Wants to Come.)"

WATER.

Full sweet of truth is the sparkle of wine,
But sorely we miss this blessing divine,
And how can we waken a song or a laugh
When we find that we simply have nothing to quaff
But water, mere water?

The banquet has little contentment to bring,
Bears little incitement to joke or to sing,
When the potions we hoped to our future would
Turn out in the end to be nothing at all,
But water; yes, water.

Good Moses of old caused the waters to flee,
And led all his people dry-shod o'er the sea;
But Moses, our host, at the precedent frowns,
And us, his poor guests, he un-
flinchingly drowns
In water, cold water.

We sit 'round the table like cold-blooded frogs,
Who live out their lives in the watery bogs;
Well, if we have fallen on watery days,
Let us, too, like them, croak a paean in praise
Of water, dear water.

Long, long may our host here with main and with might,
By night and by day, for his temperance, fight;
And may he and his line find it writ in the law,
That their business in life will be ever to draw
Water, pure water.
