

His Majesty's.

The last three performances of "Rookery Nook," that charming farcical comedy by Ben Travers, are announced and on Saturday evening the 1926 Comedy Company will conclude their present season. "Rookery Nook" is a very amusing play and admirably presented by the different artists. There is only one scene in the presentation, but what a scene! Mr. Philip D. Levard is to be heartily congratulated upon his wonderfully successful production and the excellent dressing enhanced the interest.

Next week, Guy Bates Post and Dorothy Brunton commence their season in a new play "The Climax," and judging by the reports of our Natal contemporaries a great treat is in store for Johannesburg playgoers. The naturalness, the quiet humour and the artistic tone of the play are generally admitted and it is logical to presume that the season will be entirely successful.

The Empire.

Bert Ralton's Havana Band still provides a large proportion of the splendid programme which is presented at this popular place of amusement and whether they render "Yes, Sir, that's my Baby," "Wagneria," "Moonlight and Roses," "That Certain Party," "Lonesome and Sorry," "I'd rather Charleston," "Syncopated Piano Solo," "Clap Hands," or "Here comes Charlie," the audience listen with obvious delight to their playing. Owing to the enormous Charleston craze M'Lita Dolores, who sings several charming songs, dances the step with Bert Ralton. Another dancer in the programme is Edna Maude, who presents amongst other items "Au Rosmarin" (Kriesler), "The Chinese Sage" (The Opium Smoker's Dream of Youth) and "The Hungarian Rhapsody," with a delicacy and refinement that never fails to charm. Then there are Cyril Shields in a humorous magic act, Chris Richards who is a past master of eccentricity, Irene and Hearne, novel trick cyclists, and Tex McLeod, a cow-boy roper and joker assisted by Billie Barnes. Add to these the Pathe's Gazette and the African Mirror and you have a programme which is as amusing as it is attractive.
