Yishuv Now Numbers Over 410,000 Souls

LAST YEAR SAW SETTLE-
MENT WORK WORTH HALF A MILLION POUNDS

Jerusalem, January 20th.

SOME thirty thousand Jews migrated to Palestine during 1936, bringing the Jewish population up to a total of about 410,000. During the fiscal year ending in October last the Jewish Agency expended half a million pounds for settlement activities.

This information is contained in a report issued by the Keren Hayesod (Palestine Foundation Fund) here today.

The largest part of the Jewish Agency's budget is provided by the Keren Hayesod. Besides agricultural colonisation, immigration and immigrant training, housing and public works and the security provisions during the recent disturbances, the Agency spent huge sums on educational and cultural activities and on trade and industry.

Established individual-holding colonies were consolidated, the report notes, and new colonisation initiated during the year. Sums were spent to consolidate co-operative settlements on building, irrigation, maintenance of girls' agricultural training farms, aid to middle-class colonisation and maintenance of agricultural service.

The Keren Hayesod does whatever possible to increase the economic absorptive capacity of the land. In this direction it has continually been extending loans for the erection of workers' dwellings, road building and improvements.

The so-called "foreign" banks are banking institutions other than the local banks of Palestine.

Among the "foreign" banks is included the Anglo-Palestine Bank, an English financial institution, whose deposits amounted to 7½ million pounds in October. There are also included Barclays Bank, Ottoman Bank, the Banca di Roma, the Dutch-Union Bank and the Polish Bank.

This information is revealed in the latest Bulletin of the Government Statistical Bureau, which mentions that there are seventy local banks besides the "foreign" banks.

It is further reported that during October, 1936, 1,264 dunams of land passed into Jewish hands, worth £7,314.
