Bialik Celebration.

The Bialik evening to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of Ch. N. Bialik, which was held last Sunday night in the Zionist Hall under the auspices of the Zionist Socialist Party (Poale Zion-Zeirei Zion), attracted so large a gathering that there was not standing room left.

The Chairman, Mr. Ch. Achron, in his opening address, said: To-night we are celebrating the sixtieth anniversary of our great national poet, Ch. N. Bialik, who is one of those great spirits who influence not only the poetry and literature but also the life and history of a people.

Bialik was the first poet who broke down the artificial division between Jew and man. Judaism figures in his poems not as a product of the Ghetto but as a part of humanity. He emphasises the universal character of Judaism as the bearer of an ethico-social ideal.

Bialik had great belief in action. He had this belief even before the Congress period. In his poem "Birchath Am" (Techezaknah) he presents to us what is now called the Working Eretz Israel. He sees salvation not only as an outer manifestation but as an inner process of the Jewish youth and working man, and for this reason "Techezaknah" has become the anthem of the Working Palestine.

Dr. Sachs stressed the universality of Bialik's poetry. His poems are pearls strung on the thread of time, and if they are not determined by local colour they are anchored in the stream of Jewish life and lore. The vision of the historical homeland always looms on Bialik's horizon.

Dr. Sachs pointed out that Bialik's harrowing descriptions of the pogrom to-day achieved a sinister topicality, only that the scene has been shifted from Kishinev to Berlin.

Mr. Z. Avin emphasised the individual character of Bialik's poetry. Bialik expressing the strivings and experiences of the Jewish people. Therefore he is the direct successor of the Hebrew prophets.

The speaker gave a short account of the poet's biography and various periods of his life.

Bialik's creation consists not only of poetry but includes also fiction, legends and essays, the most famous being "Halacha Veagada."

Bialik is the champion of humanity and the friend of the Chalutzim whom he sees as the bearers of a new civilisation and creators of the Jewish Renaissance.

During the course of the evening musical items were rendered. A pianoforte solo was given by Miss F. Rogoff, Hebrew and Yiddish recitations by Miss D. Radowsky, violin solo by Mr. Ch. Kreitzer and songs by Miss Ch. Rabinowitz and Mr. Ch. Kovarsky.

The function was concluded with the singing of "Techezaknah."

Trumpeldor Evening.

The Revisionist Association held a meeting on Monday evening, March 13th, in commemoration of the death of Joseph Trumpeldor. Mr. Kluk, who presided, drew the attention of his audience to the paramount importance of disposing of as many Shekels as possible and he therefore called for suggestions for the forthcoming Shekel campaign. He spoke of the numerous obstacles besetting the movement, not the least of which was the lack of a suitable press. The "Jewish Tribune," a monthly paper preaching the Revisionist doctrine, supplied this deficiency, and it behoved us to give it our wholehearted support.

Mr. Snitcher then gave a brief resumé of the life of Trumpeldor, who had given us a new code of behaviour. Humility and meekness of demeanour were henceforth to be replaced by the more courageous attitude of never allowing an insult to pass unavenged.

Mr. Rogoff gave a brief sketch of the outstanding events in Trumpeldor's life.

Mr. Ben-Arie, who had been privileged to meet Trumpeldor personally, gave a report of the encounter.

Other speakers were Mr. Dektor and Mr. Rosenthal, both of the Brith Trumpeldor.

Mr. Kluk described the heroic achievements which had brought glory and renown to the Jewish name. The story of that magnificent struggle waged against fearful odds on lonely Tel-Hai, strangely stirs the imagination and recalls some legendary hero of old.

The ground consecrated by his life's blood is now Jewish soil. He acquired for us much in the way of material possessions, but he is immortal for the spiritual legacy he left us.

Concert.

Under the auspices of the Federation of Polish Jews in the Cape a concert will take place in the Old Synagogue, Gardens, on Sunday evening, March 26th at 8 p.m., for the purpose of raising funds for the relief of starving school children in Poland. An interesting programme has been arranged and it is hoped that this concert will be well patronised.

Meeting at Paarl.

On Purim night, March 12th, Dr. Mibashan addressed a large and representative gathering in the Paarl Talmud Torah Hall. The subject of the lecture was "What Zionism really is to us."

Dr. Mibashan expressed his pleasure at seeing such a large attendance, since Purim night, in Palestine, is considered a time of great revelry.

Referring to the fierce anti-Semitic attacks in Germany and Canada, the speaker said that Zionism was passing through a very severe crisis, and it was the duty of all Jews to further the aims of Zionism, which is striving to construct a national home. It is a challenge to assimilation and is teaching us to be upright Jews who owe our very existence to Zionism which has helped us to survive all persecutions.

The speaker then enlarged upon the rapid growth of agriculture in Eretz Israel and the important part that art, education and literature is playing. He also impressed upon the audience that the three main factors in attaining success, were time, patience and perseverance.

After Dr. Mibashan had replied to questions, Rev. Strelitz proposed a vote of thanks to the speaker. In seconding the motion, Mr. Horwitz pointed out that the Zionist atmosphere was such, that no ex-

The Hebrew Teachers' Association devoted the evening of Tuesday, 21st instant, to celebrating the sixtieth birthday of our national poet, Chaim Nachman Bialik, at the Zionist Hall.

Mr. A. Levin, in his presidential address, spoke of the love Bialik had won from all sections of the people. He gave a brief sketch of the poet's biography, told of his hardships and sufferings in childhood and youth, until his poems brought him fame, and showed to what extent Jewry was indebted to him not only for his poems and in the field of prose, but for popularising the Bible, making it easy for children to learn.

Mr. M. Natas spoke of Bialik's tremendous influence, of his wide range of poetry, and of his ability to pick out the pearls and other precious stones from their sordid surroundings.

Mr. Z. Avin pointed out that since Yehuda Halevi (in the twelfth century) Jewry had not produced a poet with the true prophetic spirit till Chaim Nachman Bialik in our own days, whom he compared with the Prophet Isaiah.

Mrs. S. Rechtman and Miss Chana Rabinowitz sang some of Bialik's songs, Mrs. S. Gordon read three of his poems, and poems were recited by Miss Fanny Kolnick, Masters Abe Friedgood and Samuel Kaplan. Mr. Rabinowitz acted as accompanist throughout the evening and opened with a pianoforte solo.
