JOHANNESBURG MUSICAL SOCIETY

ON Tuesday night last at the Carlton Hotel a violin recital was given by Bram Verhoef for the Johannesburg Musical Society. It is always a pleasure to listen to this gifted violinist, and on this occasion he added further laurels to his reputation as a soloist.

The programme opened with a Sonatina of Schubert for violin and piano—a work of charm and ease enhanced by Verhoef's fluidity of tone and delicate miance of feeling. The big work of the evening was the Beethoven Sonata in C Minor. This is indeed a test of technique, musicianship and artistry, and once again Verhoef came through the test creditably. Noteworthy was the atmosphere he created in the legato passages, where sometimes a thought lingered on, long after the strings were silent.

Mr. Robert Lloyd, too, did justice to a difficult composition in his fine work at the piano. A.L.
