Eileen Ralf Recital.

Eileen Ralf's performance on Wednesday night the audience with very mixed feelings. She moments of greatness, especially in her of tone, and her rendering of the pian-passages was delightful. Unfortunately, beauty was marred by a very heavy and care-approach to the forte passages.

oubtedly the best work of the evening was Bagatelles, which she executed with a fine of touch and deep feeling. It was there-wondering to hear her interpretation of the sonata, which lacked inspiration.

Ralf opened her programme with the 32 sonatas, which, though in itself not the best of the evening, yet showed promise in her execution of the changes of mood. She ed off the evening with a charming render-of the "Für Elise" as an encore.

Eileen Ralf's next recital will take place at the Hall on Tuesday, 11th September.

ALHAMBRA.

subject of unusual interest will be the theatre's attraction from Monday. This is the production "Battle for Music," a drama the vicissitudes and triumphs of the Philharmonic Orchestra from 1939. It how, after the outbreak of war and the of financial backers, the individual members of the orchestra formed their own committee and the help of J. B. Priestley, Jack Hylton, famous conductors, two great pianists and B.B.C., established the Philharmonic Orches-and at the same time played a big part in maintaining the country's morale.

PLAZA.

those who saw Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story" will look forward to seeing them together again in "Without Love," a story by the same author, which is being shown at the Plaza next week. Elegantly written with clever dialogue, the story deals with the eccentric courtship and early married life of two persons who had declared themselves "foolish" when it came to physical attractions and accepted ways of love and romance.

ROYAL.

"Meet me in St. Louis," which will be presented at the Royal on Monday, stars Judy Garland and Margaret O'Brien. This Technicolor musical has everything in the way of entertainment.
It is wonderfully acted and sung, beautifully directed and brilliantly produced. It has charm and tenderness as well as fine music.
