

ANTWERP, March 20.
The struggle here takes place at Ghent. It appears that a soldier was nominated in a cellar under a table, in the suburbs. It is said that the husband of the soldier and the soldier were mutually satisfied. He did not believe in the examination by the officers of justice. Many of his comrades and some citizens, went to the tavern and threw the furniture into the street. They then went to the house of M. Stevens, (editor of the Messenger de Ghent), which they completely gutted; the fragments of his furniture, carriages, papers, and covered the Spieghel.

Mr. ERASMUS LOUIS SURLET CHOKIER, has, in the Session of the Belgian Congress, on the 25th of March last, been installed as REGENT OF BRUSSELS.

POLAND.
We copy the follow from a Dutch paper. It will be seen that the brave inhabitants of Warsaw are preparing for a vigorous defence of their city:

Warsaw, March 21.
The Diet has had no sitting for some days past. The deputies meet daily, but only in detached parties; and it is said that the committee will not be ready with the draught of the important law for granting the serfs the right of possessing landed property.

According to the picture drawn by our State Gazette, the country on that side of the Vistula which has been exposed to the ravages of war is in a frightful state. The villages are for the most part destroyed, and even where they are not, the wretched inhabitants, driven to despair by want, wander about in the woods, and attach detached parts of the soldiers to plunder them. In the neighbourhood of Warsaw much alarm is entertained on account of the heaps of dead bodies, both men and horses, which lie about half buried in the woods, and which, in the apprehension, will be the cause of an infectious fever, on the re-approach of warm spring weather.

On the 17th, a heavy cannonade was heard in the direction of Ostrovetzka.

On the same day General Krucvicki inspected the works for the interior defence of the city. Not only did he examine the batteries on the Vistula, and the batteries in the streets, but even the beams, bars, and other fastenings for securing the doors and windows of the houses in case the enemy should penetrate into the town. Moreover, the General has caused a number of mines to be dug, and transverse walls to be erected in some streets, the object of which appears to be to divide the town into several fortified districts, which shall be independent of each other. At the same time, communicating passages are established at different points. Within these few days, a number of crosses of honour have been distributed to the regiments in Warsaw.

Berlin, March 24.
The language of the French papers respecting the war in Poland has been a subject of much amusement to the people of this city. At one time the Russian army was stated to be almost entirely annihilated, and a few hours after Warsaw had surrendered, and the Polish nation had ceased to exist. The truth is, that the Poles have hitherto a right to claim the honours of the campaign; but their position, it is evident, is in some respects similar to that of the ancient heroes, of whom it is said in history, that they fell after an obstinate combat, but overpowered by the multitudes of their enemies, but overcame with the fatigues of victory.

Letters have been received from Poland up to the 20th. The weather is extremely unfavourable to the Russians, and in consequence of the melting of the ice it is supposed that they will have the greatest difficulty in passing the Vistula. Some say that they felt themselves unable to continue the contest until they were assisted by the Guards, who began to arrive at Roygod on the 17th.

A letter from Warsaw, dated the 20th March, states that a great battle was expected by all parties to take place on the 25th, but the writer does not say where. He further adds, that the Poles had little or no hopes of success.

(Paris, April 2.—National.)
According to a report from the Head Quarters of Field Marshal Diebitch, on the 13th March, the ice was piled up in the vicinity of Warsaw, in masses as high as a house, and for the moment the passage of the Vistula was absolutely impracticable. The Russian army is concentrated about Siedlca and Minsk; it draws its subsistence from the magazines formed on its frontiers. In this position it will probably wait for the return of the spring, when it will advance with fresh force, and endeavour to put an end to insurrection at one blow.—Morning Chronicle, April 2.

A considerable number of Polish gentlemen, the majority young, men of rank and fashion, were in Paris at the breaking out of the insurrection at Warsaw. Of this number only three remain in the French capital; the rest hurried quickly to the field, where their national honour was to be maintained; and I believe, with one exception, (a young Pole, who is supposed to be imprisoned in Prussia), they succeeded by brilliant and distinguished in surmounting the accumulated difficulties which impeded against their return. Of the three who remain here, one is detained by extreme ill health, the others by having local and detaching connections. The spirit of honour which took young men of fashion from the saloons of Paris, to partake in the horrors of a war, is the result of which many of them were not sanguine, will shine over their fate, and, whether in disaster or in success, command for them the admiration of mankind.

BAVARIA.
(City Intelligence, April.)
Mails have been received to-day from France, Brazil, and Buenos-Ayres. The only news we have from the continent, which has not been anticipated in the foreign extracts given by this morning's papers, relates to Bavaria. According to letters from Munich, the Bavarian army was to be put immediately on the war footing. All soldiers on furlough were recalled, and recruits were forthwith to be drawn for. It is said that the whole amount of force to be put in readiness is 100,000 men, including cavalry. No small curiosity has been excited as to the object of these preparations. In some letters it is said they are merely the consequence of the warlike attitude which all the great Powers of the continent have assumed, as Bavaria is determined to observe independent neutrality, which she might not be able to maintain without the aid of a powerful army. In other letters it is affirmed that an alliance between her and Poland is likely to take place, and that the Bavarian Government is desirous of watching for an opportunity in order to declare in favour of the Poles. This belief, however, is more likely to be derived from the notoriety of the liberal principles professed by the present King of Bavaria, than from any knowledge of his real intentions.

The reader will remember, that the Congress, at the close of which the Duke de Nemours, as King of Belgium, took place, has declared, that if the King of the Belgians should refuse to accept the crown for the minor (the Duke's son), the Government of Belgium would be provisionally intrusted to a Regent, until the said Duke should have, to some age, and should himself decide about accepting the crown.

SPAIN.
(Private Correspondence.)
The greatest excitement prevails here among the nobles, and the lowest distinctions are thrown against all foreigners who meddle in Spanish politics. The French nobles are particularly exposed to surveillance, and two Spanish nobles have been banished from Court for maintaining friendly relations at the embassy of France. The police are night and day on the alert making arrests. Last night 20 persons were thrown into prison, and we hear this day that they are to be removed to the Presidio. A party of the nobles, who were thrown into prison, and we hear this day that they are to be removed to the Presidio. A party of the nobles, who were thrown into prison, and we hear this day that they are to be removed to the Presidio.

Paris, March 29.
A letter from Madrid of the 24th says, that numerous arrests have taken place in that capital, and furnish the proof of a vast conspiracy in several parts of Spain. Orders have just been despatched to organize military tribunals in the provinces.

SWITZERLAND.
Austria has at length recognized the neutrality of Switzerland, and the acknowledgment by Russia and Prussia will immediately follow. It is known that the Austrian Cabinet in its diplomatic note respects our neutrality, and will not interfere in any manner in the affairs of the cantons. This power would not even require, as has been reported, the condition that Switzerland shall every where give its countersign with troops.

Torrem is in the city of Madrid, in the environs of the city, with three thousand men. The Spanish Government has not a clew to the revolutionary conspiracy. Several families in Valencia and Andalusia are deeply compromised. Don Rodrigo Aranda, formerly an Alcalde, has been arrested at Madrid; and Francisco Brindas, formerly a Corregidor, at Malaga, an officer of engineers, committed suicide at the bookshop; Pucier, an adventurer, and also a confederate, rich merchant of Bilbao; Regato, a physician, Chief of the Commission; and Perez, a physician, are also in confinement. General Pepe, after having in vain attempted to embark at Malaga, Toulon, and Hyeres, has been obliged to remain in France, and has arrived at Paris.

FRONTIERS OF ITALY, MARCH 25.—General Baresi Primont having declared to the subjects of the Pope, by a proclamation, dated Milan, 19th March, that in consequence of an application for succor made by His Holiness to his Majesty the Emperor of Austria, a corps of imperial troops would enter the Papal territories to restore the legitimate Government, which had been for the moment usurped by the rebels, the General entered Bologna at the head of his troops, without resistance, on the 21st March in the morning. A detachment from the city, with the Podestà at its head, went as far as Samoggia to meet him. The considerable armed force of the insurgents that was in the city, under the command of General Zucchi, had retired the day before, taking Cardinal Bevacqua with them. The imperial advanced posts were already on the other side of Bologna. Accounts from some of the 18th, say that everything was quiet there, and the news of the occupation of Ferrara by the Austrian troops had caused great joy. The Papal General Resta had published on the 14th a general pardon for Papal soldiers who had joined the rebels. Letters from Italy speak of a violent eruption of Mount Etna towards the end of February.
