

ON THE BANDWAGON

Check out the live music scene around Durban this weekend

THE Winston (with its new pool room and additional furniture) keeps the live music pumping today with the band Sutherland, supported by Paperclip.

If you've never been to the Winston you'll find it at the bottom of Clark Road in the Glenwood area.

And if you're still in the mood for more music from the Winston, the strangely named but fun band, The Happy Clappers (THC), will take to the stage at the Glenwood hotel tomorrow afternoon.

FUNKY'S at the Bat Centre is back on track with its live music and tonight the stage will belong to the brilliant Halcyon Days.

So, if you're looking for a new experience, go experience it with these guys.

PIETERMARITZBURG music lovers can look forward to tonight's performance by The Awakening at the Buzz Bar

Described as a gothic rock band, The Awakening hail from Johannesburg and say they have "created a new blend with a different presentation and execution of the traditional music form".

THE laid-back Smelly's Bar at Smuggler's Inn (Alexandra Hotel in Point Road) is still featuring Tony Darrell and The Moonshines on Saturday afternoons from 2pm to 6pm.

The band plays rock and roll and country music. Tomorrow Smelly's features The Collexion playing jazz from 1pm to 4pm.

There is no entrance charge at Smelly's and a car guard is in attendance to keep the car thieves at bay.

JAZZ at the Horse With No Name continues every Sunday evening at 6pm with the Music Connection who are on bass and vocals Roger Marsh, on piano Baron Herbst, on drums Tony Daykin and on saxes Mike Laatz and John Elliot. Visiting musicians are also invited to join in.

Vibey Bean Bag Bohemia in Windermere Road is dishing up its usual dish of polished jazz on Sunday night, featuring jazz pianist Melvin Peters and George and Debbi Mari.

THIRSTY'S at the Point Waterfront hosts Salty Dog playing rock and blues tomorrow from 3pm till late.

AN ENTRY for your diary. If you were around in the glory days of Woodstock, you'll probably remember American singer Richie Havens.

He was the guy who performed for three hours at the start of Woodstock because the other acts got held up in the traffic jam.

Anyway, he's coming to Durban next month and will perform at the ICC on October 10 at 8pm.

Booking is at Computicket. Richie is the first international music legend in the "International Theatre Series" which will see a spectrum of acclaimed performers coming to the country to play smaller, more intimate concerts.

*If you have bands playing your venue, on Saturdays and Sundays only please, fax details to Debbie Re...
On The Bandwago
3082355 before noon
Thursday.*