

3rd Ear Music & The HYMA Project Report

From: "Joan Moore" <joanm46@hotmail.com>
To: "David Marks" <david@3rdearmusic.com>
Sent: 29 November 2002 08:41
Subject: News Forum - Where does the lion sleep?

comments = Wow, there is so much information about this song on the net, I have one question and it may be in your story (very comprehensive, wow! excellent!), but I'm helping put together a school play about animals misbehaving on a school bus- transferring it to video so school kids can be safer around their school buses, and there happens to be a lion sleeping on the school bus at the end (a total coincidence- kids fall asleep on the bus all the time and wake up quite frightened, so when we realised the song FIT, we were totally amazed). I was wondering what is involved in getting permission or rights to use a small part of such a fantastic song, maybe the version recorded by the tokens? This article is so comprehensive, the answer just may be in here somewhere. Just in case it's not by the time I'm finished researching, I thought I would ask you. This really seems like a long shot to me and wouldn't kill us to make other plans, like snoring noises, growling, even meowing and purring, etc. instead of the song, but I think I should ask around a little anyway.

29/11/02