

Ms Masekela said yesterday that her department's belief was that the cultural boycott should remain in force while South Africans developed "a national democratic culture".

I keep saying to myself . . . it's national, it's democratic, but is it culture?