THE ZUID-AFRIKAAN.

CAPE TOWN, MAY 16, 1845.

The latest information from the N. E. Frontier, will be found in another column of this paper, from which it appears, that we have to expect a speedy settlement of the affairs in that quarter. The Farmers have all submitted, and peace and tranquillity may be considered restored.

His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by the Attorney General, left Town yesterday morning for Colesberg, and their arrival will be most seasonable, for the purpose of enquiring themselves into the origin and cause of the exciting difference between the Emigrants and the Griquas, and so arranging the matter as to remove all cause of discontent, and all further hostile feeling between the parties.

The public will feel gratified at the moderation shown by the troops, to which alone must be ascribed the few lives lost on the occasion of the attack; and we have no doubt that the same temper and humane feeling will mark the further proceedings of His Excellency the Governor.

It is reported that despatches recently received from the Home Government, disallow the project of a Breakwater, as too expensive for the Colonial resources. They also, it is said, approve the withholding of the salaries heretofore paid to the Clerks and Sextons of the several Churches, and orders that the saving thus effected shall be employed only for salaries for additional Clergymen.

On Wednesday last the Supreme Court decided upon the motion for arrest of judgement, moved by Mr. Advocate CLORES, on behalf of J. D. THOMPSON, who was found guilty by the Jury of fraudulent embezzlement. The motion was refused, and sentence was given for 14 years transportation to Van Diemen's Land, and confinement in goal with or without hard labor. It is long since such a severe sentence was pronounced.

THE NORTHERN BOUNDARY.

(From the "Graham's Town Journal," May 8) Wednesday, 7th May.

THE EMIGRANTS AND THE GRIQUAS. The information from the Northern boundary is well calculated to fill the mind with a good deal of painful anxiety. Up to the present moment we have carefully abstained from offering any opinion as to the merits of the existing disputes between the Farmers and Griquas, and which have already caused so much embarrassment to the colony, and so considerable an expense to the British Treasury. As far as regards the abstract question of rights to land, and in which the quarrel is said to originate, we do not conceive there is any great inequality. Both parties are alike usurpers, while the culpability does not lie so much with either, as with our government in allowing adventurers from the colony to pass the boundary, and on its very threshold to form themselves into independent communities, acknowledging no law but that of might, and no restraint but such as might spring spontaneously from their own unruly wills. What could be expected from such sapience and infatuation as this? and yet there are those who call for vengeance on men who have been thus led step by step to that precipice, on the very brink of which they are now standing. We do not refer in this remark to the local authorities, their hands have been to a great extent tied, while the prejudice which has long existed in the colonial office at home, in favor of what is called "Aboriginal rights," has been a fatal obstruction to the adoption of those measures best calculated to ensure the security of the European settler, and the civilization of the native.

Extract of a letter received by express, Tuesday night, May 6th:—

"The troops are now following the Boers over the River, with about 400 Bastards, and it is expected that this evening the Boers will be quite hemmed in. Col. Richardson has indeed made a bold step, and I should say a very proper one. He found the Boers were retreating, and likely to evade the questions pending between them. He called upon the Magistrate to answer him a few questions publicly to the following effect:—

"1st. Have you succeeded in carrying out the instructions entrusted to you?

"Answer—I am very sorry to say that up to the present time I have not.

"2nd. In what light do you look upon the Boers, as British subjects or otherwise?

"Answer—They are decidedly British subjects."

"Then" said the Colonel, "if they are British subjects I must treat them as rebels, and from this moment I take the entire responsibility upon myself. I shall march the troops to attack them to-night at 12 o'clock, and the only terms I offer them is to give up 20 of the ringleaders, and to lay down their arms unconditionally." He was as good as his word, and actually did march, the handful of men he has at his command, making his dispositions to surround them about 5 hours ride from Philippolis.

The last Squadron of the Dragon Guards will only arrive here to-morrow with the Artillery. Colonel Richardson has no cannon with him.

FRIDAY MORNING, 7 O'CLOCK.

The Troops are passing through Colesberg at this moment on their way to the River. An express came in last night, stating that Colonel Richardson had attacked the Boers, killed and wounded six, took a good many prisoners, and captured their ammunition and a large lot of cattle. The Boers are flying in all directions."

In addition to the above we have been informed that Col. Richardson adopted a ruse which was perfectly successful. Marching to his position under cover of night, he placed a party of Griquas on the heights facing the Boers' camp. At day-break on the following morning the Farmers observing these men, quickly saddled their horses, and rode out to attack the enemy, perfectly unconscious of their near vicinity to the troops. Seizing the favorable moment the Dragons dashed forward, followed by a considerable body of mounted Griquas, or Bastards, and the result was as stated in the above communication. It need hardly be added that the misguided Boers were completely at the mercy of their assailants—that hope of successful resistance was at once abandoned, and that all were endeavouring, when the account left, to find refuge in the wilds of the interior.

SUBSTANCE OF OFFICIAL DESPATCHES.

Received this morning (Thursday) by His Honor the Lieut.-Governor.

Substance of Despatch from Lieut.-Colonel Richardson, 7th Dragon Guards, dated May 1st:—

Finding that the negotiation of the Civil Commissioner with the Insurgent Boers had been unsuccessful, Lieut.-Colonel Richardson moved forward on the 29th ult. with 240 men to the Orange River, which he crossed the same afternoon. He advanced by a rapid march on the 30th ult. about 400 strong, but had been broken up, probably from information which had reached the Boers the preceding day. Five wagons and 10 or 12 men were all that were left there. Three horses died in consequence of the rapidity of the march. Information was received that the Boers had taken a strong position, and on the 30th the special magistrate (Mr. Rawlstone), and three officers, namely, Lieut. Thompson, 7th Dragon Guards, Lieut. Pattison, 91st, and Ensign Harvey, C.M.R., with a small escort, were directed to make a reconnaissance and to the exertions of these officers, the plan of operations was to march the troops to a central point north of Philippolis. Accordingly a detachment of 180 men of the 91st Regt. were marched at 12 o'clock at night, and took ground at that point early the following morning. Lieut. Richardson followed with the cavalry and arrived on the same spot at 10 a.m. Here the troops halted for a short time, and Capt. Schooner, who had received some reports, it was determined to march upon the Boers' camp, distant about ten miles, and which, it was learned, the Boers had been induced partially to evacuate. The infantry on reaching the plain found the Boers engaged with the Griquas. The cavalry hastened up, and the infantry were then directed to move forward rapidly to the encampment, and to take up a position there. The Boers on seeing the cavalry instantly dispersed, and fled to a strong rocky ridge, where they endeavored to make a stand. Capt. Schooner, and a detachment of the Cape Mounted Rifles, under Ensign Harvey, advanced on their left in skirmishing order, and gave them a volley. This drove them once from their position. The second troops of Dragons were then brought up under Capt. Heaton and who charged sword in hand. The misguided and unfortunate Boers endeavored to escape from their assailants, but were pursued across the plain, where but for the forbearance of the attacking party they must all have been cut down. Several prisoners were taken, and one of a three-pounder had been run into their flight. One gun, a three-pounder, was placed on the side of a rocky hill, but this was speedily seized by Lt. Gray, 7th Dragons—the driver, a Frenchman, being shot through the head before it could be brought to bear. The British troops have not sustained any loss, notwithstanding the heavy fire of musketry which for a few minutes was kept up. Capt. Heaton's charger received a musket ball in the shoulder.—The Boers, it is stated, fired over the heads of the troops.—One Griqua and two Boers are reported killed, and one Boer mortally wounded. It is cordially affirmed, that more must have fallen, but that the bodies have been carried away from the field of action. Five wagons, 1 three-pounder gun, 1 ammunition cart, a great quantity of balls and other rough projectiles, and about 15 stand of arms, have fallen into the hands of the British troops. Fifteen prisoners were also taken, together with a large number of cattle and sheep. The abandoned camp was taken possession of by the troops, and who arrived in position the same evening. The Commanding Officer, Lieut.-Col. Richardson, speaks in terms of high approval of all the Officers and men engaged, especially naming Ensign Harvey, C.M.R., as having, by his skill in making his reconnaissance, and coolness in the subsequent proceedings, greatly distinguished himself.—In the course of the evening of the 30th April, several flags of truce were sent to the Commander of the British troops, stating that the Emigrants were willing to accede to any terms, and to abide by any conditions which the Colonial Government might impose on them as British subjects. This favorable disposition was immediately communicated to the special magistrate then at Philippolis, and whose presence was requested to receive the submission of the misguided men who, with such unaccountable stupidity, had been seduced to place themselves in opposition to British authority. Among the prisoners are two deserters from the 91st Regt. Their names are R. Lappa and J. Hill. One of these men, it is said, can be proved to have fired the gun. A Field-officer, named Piet Smit, is also among the prisoners.

Substance of Despatch from Lt.-Col. Richardson, dated 2nd May. The Special Magistrate arrived at the position of the British commander on the afternoon of the 1st instant. It was then determined to move the troops towards a camp of the emigrants at Tso Fontein. A Squadron of the 7th Dragons, and a detachment of 24 of the Cape Mounted Rifles, were accordingly marched thither the next morning. This camp, which had been abandoned around for defence, was found to contain 100 men, besides women and children. These at once surrendered at discretion. Sixty-one wagons and three carts were found here. The British commander, in consequence of the ready submission of this party, allowed them to retain all their property. Their arms were laid down, amounting to 109 muskets, thirty-one of which were returned at their earnest request, as being necessary both for defence, and to enable them to obtain subsistence. Thirty-four bags of gunpowder, a quantity of balls, &c., were taken possession of. Eighty-three men here took the oath of allegiance to the British government. The troops moved from hence at 9 a.m., and at 4 p.m., arrived at Philippolis, with the arms and ammunition in two Wagons. The next day all the prisoners were released, on taking the oath of allegiance to the British crown, with the exception of the two deserters, who, of course, await the decision of His Excellency the Governor. Some of the Boers who were present in the first engagement were found at Tso Fontein, and it is supposed in some measure that their report is to be attributed the ready submission of their countrymen on this occasion, as well as to a Proclamation which had been issued by the British commander at the outset, and widely circulated. Of this the following is an accurate translation:— The Emigrant British subjects, unlawfully assembled in arms, are hereby summoned to surrender themselves unconditionally to Her Majesty's troops, or they will be proceeded against as Rebels. In the name of our sovereign, Queen Victoria, ROBERT RICHARDSON, Lt.-Col. Commanding, 30th April, 1845.

Information was received at Philippolis, that most of the fugitives had taken shelter in detached camps, at places named respectively, Vries Fontein, Olivier Fontein and Niet Poort.

Substance of Despatch, from Lt.-Col. Richardson, dated 3d May.

The Boers are flocking in, requesting to be permitted to take the oath of allegiance, and amongst others the Field-officer Oosterhuis, has sent in a declaration, of which the following is a translation:— "We, the undersigned, Field-officer Oosterhuis, and his commando, are willing to swear allegiance to Her Majesty, and obedience to the laws. We are willing further to lay down our arms and ammunition at 1 o'clock to-morrow, at Vries Fontein, in presence of the troops of Her Majesty. We appoint for the place to do this, the dwelling at Vries Fontein." Signed, J. P. OOSTERHUIS.

A postscript to the foregoing notifies that about 60 Boers had that day been to the camp, and taken the oath of allegiance. The principal leaders of the insurrection had escaped—among whom are named Mokee and Keek. They are supposed to have fled across the Drankberg to Wenen, in the Natal territory. One of the leaders, named Stein, is said to have given himself up.

We have only to add to the foregoing that His Honor the Lieutenant Governor will leave Graham's Town on Saturday for the immediate scene of the commotion, and we have no doubt on his arrival that every means which benevolence can suggest will be adopted to bring these misguided men to a sense not merely of their duty, but of their own self-interest. His Honor will only take with him an escort of the Mounted Rifles—the order for the march of a detachment of the 91st Regiment, which was to have taken place to day, being countermanded.

The Civil Commissioner of Colesberg, Mr. Rawlstone, and who is adverted to by Colonel Richardson as Special Magistrate, appears to have won golden opinions from all men. His humane and incessant endeavours to save the infatuated Emigrants from the misfortunes which have overtaken them, cannot be otherwise than appreciated at a high value by all who can understand the difficulties of his position and the weight of prejudice with which he has had to contend.

THE MONSTER BELL FOR YORK MINSTER.

The bell, intended to be put up in the South Tower of York Minster, has recently been manufactured at the foundry of the Messrs. Mears, Whitechapel, it being larger than any other in the United Kingdom. Its weight exceeds 12 tons; it is 17 feet 7 inches in height, and its diameter is 8 feet 4 inches, being heavier by 7 tons than the celebrated "Tom" of Lincoln, and by 5 tons than "Old Tom" of Oxford. The metal took 12 days to cool, from the 18th of January when it was poured into the mould to the 30th ult. The clapper is not yet put in, but this will weigh between 3 and 4 cwt. The tone of it is described as being exceedingly grand, and to be compared to the full swelling diapason of an organ. The arms of the city of York, and those of the Archbishop (the cross keys), are of the bell in opposite positions to each other. The following inscription, in Lombardian characters, is round the upper rim:—"In sancto Trinitatis honorem pecunia sponte collata Eboracensium faciem dum curaverunt in usum ecclesie metrop. B. Petri ebor." And on the lower rim are the words:—"Anno salutis MDCCCLXVI Victoria, reg. VIII. Edwardi Archiepi XXXVIII. C et G Mears, Londini, fecerunt." The cost of it is about 2,000*l.*, this having been raised by voluntary subscriptions, as alluded to in the above inscription. It is intended by the executive committee, previous to its removal to the Cathedral at York, where it will be conveyed by railway, that the public should have an opportunity of seeing the bell (which it will be named "Peter of York"), and which it will require the united efforts of 20 horses to draw.—Times.
