

THE ZUID-AFRIKAAN

CAPE TOWN, MARCH 2, 1848.

At 19 o'clock yesterday the display of the "Union Jack" on the Lion's Ramp Signal Post, and the firing of a gun from the Castle Battery, announced the approach of Sir HARRY SMITH, and about half an hour later His Excellency reached the upper trunk of the lines where a triumphal arch had been erected by the Municipality.

ADDRESS

Of the Commissioners and Wardens of the Municipality of Cape Town, upon the return of His Excellency the Administrator of the Government and Her Majesty's High Commissioner, within the precincts of this Municipality.

We the Commissioners and Wardens of the Cape Town Municipality, beg to congratulate your Excellency upon your safe return to the precincts of this city, after so successfully accomplishing the most arduous and difficult task ever undertaken by any Governor of this Colony; and although we fully anticipated, as expressed in our Address to Your Excellency, on your first arrival, the happiest results from your Excellency's appointment, we were not prepared to admit, that your Excellency's wise, humane, and judicious measures for the settlement of the long pending difficulties and differences on our immediate Frontier, as well as with reference to the District of Natal, have exceeded our most sanguine expectations.

We rejoice, that it has pleased Almighty God, the Ruler of the Universe, and Governor, so to have disposed of the heart of Your Excellency, as to have adopted the course of measures, and pray, that Your Excellency may long be spared for the exercise of those excellent qualities, which Your Excellency has so strikingly evinced on this and many other occasions, and that Your Excellency and Lady Smith may continue to be the objects of His great goodness and mercy.

In reply, His Excellency stated in substance, "that it was with feelings of pride and emotion that he received the Address. He thanked God who enabled him to adopt the measures he had done for the tranquillity and future government of this colony, and hoped that in their results they would prove beneficial to all interests. Having adopted those measures he felt it his duty to return with all possible speed to the seat of Government, in order to complete his arrangements, which he was determined to carry out. Too much governing and too much commanding, said His Excellency, were calculated to work evil; he would however endeavor so to govern that should it please Providence to stop his earthly career before all his measures had been properly carried into effect, the path might be chalked out for his successor." His Excellency again thanked the corporation for the kind feelings expressed towards himself and Lady SMITH, and then rode on to government house, where another Address was presented to him by Mr. KING, of the firm of PHILIPS & KING, on the part of the Merchants. The following is a copy of said Address:—

In the name of the Mercantile body of Cape Town, we do ourselves the honor to congratulate your Excellency on your return to the seat of Government in this city, after having, with unparalleled rapidity and complete success, accomplished the wish dearest to your heart, the pacification of Southern Africa. No stranger to your Excellency's transcendent abilities, we saw you depart for the troubled scene on the Frontier, with confidence and hope, feeling assured that whatever talent and honor could effect in subduing the hostile and warring tribes, and reconciling the disaffected, would distinguish your Excellency. But your Excellency's achievements during the Fifty-eight Days that elapsed from your landing in Algoa Bay, on the 14th of December, to the appearance of your final Proclamation at Pietermaritzburg on the 10th of February, have so far surpassed our utmost expectations, that no words of ours can express the admiration and gratitude that fill our hearts. You completed the subjugation of Kaffraria, restored peace, and laid the foundations of lasting security on all our borders; throwing yourself with fearless affection among the Native Tribes, and dispersed Emigrants in the Interior, you subdued their hearts, while you convinced their understandings, and shed a clear light over that vast region, so long the abode of darkness, confusion, and despair; and tempering authority with overbearing generosity, you united the sentiments of every upright and intelligent individual from Table Bay to Natal, in willing obedience to our gracious Sovereign, and in devoted attachment to you, Sir, as her most worthy Representative. You have conquered faster than other men travel. You have destroyed all enemies by converting them into friends. When we recollect that all this has been accomplished without a drop of blood, that no life, even of the most insignificant, has been sacrificed, and that the distant tribes lately so fierce and formidable, and through the countries as savage as their inhabitants were, long esteemed, we must turn to the Great Author of Peace and Giver of concord, and say with yourself, "Not unto us, not unto us, but unto Thy name be the glory!" And it is matter of supreme satisfaction to observe, that your Excellency has pointed so emphatically to Religion and Education as the deep and broad foundations of peace and prosperity, that those barbarous lands, all issues are in the hands of the Most High, and we, with all our fellow colonists, friends and allies in the wide region you have visited, would join in imploring his sanction on the great work you have so happily begun; and that his choicest blessings may rest upon yourself, your family, and government.

To this address His Excellency replied, in substance, as follows:— "That he was greatly affected by the cordial manner in which he had been received here by the citizens. That he without the shedding of one drop of human blood, the feelings of all classes were directed to one focus; but that it should not be forgotten that before his arrival, much blood had been shed, which naturally had contributed to create a desire for peace. That he had deemed it his duty, immediately after his first arrangements were made, to return to this city, in order further to extend and carry into effect the measures which he had adopted, and that he had purposely made the journey overland to inspect the state of the Churches, Schools and Roads, and could not bear evidence to the great improvements which had been effected in these branches.

and horseman, and thousands of pedestrians, having gone out to meet him; and along the whole line of road, up to Government House, he was greeted with deafening cheers. In the evening, the whole of the town was splendidly illuminated.

The following General Orders were issued by Sir HARRY SMITH, immediately before he left the Frontier. The expression of high approbation by an officer of the rank and experience of His Excellency, must indeed be most gratifying to the parties therein alluded to:—

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 145.

Hond Quarters, Graham's Town, Feb. 21, 1848.

1. The Commander-in-Chief leaves this Frontier in profound peace, with great satisfaction, and in the firm belief that a peace effected through the bravery of the troops, and the loyalty of her Majesty's subjects, will be as permanent as beneficial to this important Colony. His Excellency has already laid before his Grace the Duke of Wellington, his opinion and approbation of the conduct of the troops throughout two years of the most harassing and arduous duties of war, as represented by his professor, Lieut. Gen. Sir George Berkeley, and he again begs to convey to that veteran experienced soldier, Col. Somerset, his conviction that his energy and activity mainly contributed to this great result.

2. A war arising from the sudden and unexpected invasion of the frontiers, is the author of various irregularities and errors, attributable to exciting peculiar causes, frequently to be avoided, or resulting from an imperfect apprehension on the part of those in some degree empowered to authorize issues, which at the time the Commissioner has no power to refuse, and the expenditure in this respect is the result of the moment. With this knowledge, derived from experience, the Commander-in-Chief desires to express to Com. Gen. Palmer, and Dep. Com. Gen. Green his marked approbation of their conduct, and that of the great exertions under their control, and which may rest assured that it will ever afford his Excellency great happiness to report on the method which obtains in this department; reflecting as much honor and credit upon these officers, as conspicuous bravery in the field does upon the soldier.

3. The Commander-in-Chief equally desires to convey his high opinion of the method which has been apparent in conducting the arduous and laborious duties of the Ordnance Storekeeper's Department, and Mr. Saunderson and the officers under him may rely on this favorable opinion being communicated to the Master General.

4. The troops, it is hoped, so soon as their quarters in British Kaffraria are complete, will enjoy some repose after the fatigues of war. British Kaffraria is placed under the command of great ability and firmness, the soldiers' friend—hence it is the Commander-in-Chief's desire, that every forward result. Colonel Mackinnon possesses the particular knowledge required for the management and adaptation of the duties of those who have to perform them, and his Excellency is fully satisfied that he will receive every support from the able officers in command of the regiments under him, who will maintain discipline by a kind, prudent and discreet management of officers and soldiers, whose pride it is ever to serve her Majesty and their Country.

(Signed) H. L. MAYDWELL, Military Secretary.

The post of yesterday brought the following, for which, as connected with His Excellency's last proceedings on the Frontier, we readily make room:—

We are informed that before quitting King William's Town on Friday night His Excellency had a meeting with all the Chiefs of British Kaffraria, whom he addressed, expressing his satisfaction at finding them so contented and at peace with the country so peaceful. He was most happy in being still able to call them his children, and he assured them that so long as they continued by their good conduct to deserve his approbation they should receive all the encouragement and reward it was in his power to give them.

"All the Chiefs thanked, and expressed with much feeling and apparent sincerity their gratitude to His Excellency for what he had done for them. Sandilla and Umhala were particularly emphatic in their professions of gratitude, pledging themselves that no fault should hereafter be found with them. Several stands of arms were brought in, and delivered up to His Excellency in reply to the assurances he had given them, and that should arise in that quarter he would be ready to avail himself of the services of the inhabitants of British Kaffraria in putting it down, and on the other hand, should that country be disturbed, he would be equally ready to bring down a Zulu army, and drive the aggressors from the territory they now occupied."—G. EUROPEAN BURIAL SOCIETY ("THE LADE") AND WIDOWS' FUND.

On Monday, the 28th instant, the Annual General Meeting took place. The number of contributing members of the "Lade" is 119, and of the Widows' Fund, 82. Since the last meeting 17 new members have joined the "Lade," and 14 the Widows' Fund.

The annual revenue of the Burial Society and Widows' Fund amounts to about £300, and the ordinary expenditure may be calculated at about £210.

Six of the Brethren receive support, and three Widows are pensioned to an amount of £9 per annum.

Printed forms of application to be admitted as members, as well as the regulations of this Society, may be had from the Society's messenger and undertaker, F. Schneck, Strand-street.

The following is a Statement of the Fund on the 31st December, 1847.

To Capital of the Lade, being the amount thereof on this day... £1481 0 0

The case of the Cape Town Municipality v. Messrs. Motkel & De Villiers, the particulars of which were communicated in our paper of the 17th ultimo, and in which the legality of the Market Relief Ordinance was tried—was brought under review before the Supreme Court on Tuesday last. The Court confirmed the decision of the Magistrate.

The latest intelligence from China, to the 30th October last, will be found elsewhere. Everything there was quiet, even to an unexampled degree. Sir John Davis had paid a visit to Cochon China, where the late difference between the French and the Cochon Chinese had so exasperated the Emperor that he had issued the bloody command to put to death all French Missionaries within his dominions.

Original Correspondence.

District of Mossel Bay, Feb. 9, 1848.

Sir,—As a Subscriber to your useful paper, I request that you will be pleased to give a place in your columns to the following:— "As disease often occurs here and in the neighbourhood, and wears destitute of all intellectual light, I would earnestly recommend the Government to appoint a skilful physician, for the purpose of being therapeutically necessary."

I am, Sir, PRO BONO PUBLICO.

MAURITIUS.—GOVERNMENT MINUTE.

The Draft of Ordinance which I am about to lay before the Council is one which I am enjoined by the Secretary of State to bring under the consideration of the Board "with the least possible delay."

It has for its object the establishment of a paper currency in the colony under the immediate and exclusive control of Government. The measure embodies positive injunctions laid down by Her Majesty's Minister and the application of existing statutes for guarding against subreptitious issues of such paper or other abuse, affording therefore no subject for the public observation and little for alteration in Council, previous to its enactment.

The bringing the measure into operation is made contingent by the Secretary of State upon the relinquishment by the local Banks of their privilege of circulating notes of their Establishments respectively.

It is a measure, however, which Her Majesty's Government considers as essential to the welfare of the colony at large, to bring as early as possible into effect, and the information which reaches me from various interests to which it is the basis of the anticipation of Government.

I propose then that the Council should at once proceed to carry through the enactment with all practicable diligence and empower the Government to extend the measure of relief so soon as the Banks shall have signified their assent; and I make this proposal with the greater confidence, resting on the assurance that these Companies will have been prepared by the Secretary of State to relinquish their privilege of issuing notes, as Earl Grey confidently reckons they will do so, in cooperation with the local Government to the utmost of their power in carrying the intended measure into effect.

CHINA.—LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

(From the Colombo Observer, Nov. 23, 1847.)

The Lady Mary Wood, from Hongkong 30th October, arrived at Galle on the 18th. The intelligence from China is most gratifying. There is nothing whatever to disturb the peaceful relations between the British and Chinese. The Garrison was about to be broken up—the old ship Royal Irish to Calcutta, and the Lord Philipstone, 405 tons, to take the 43rd Native Infantry, to Madras. The Squadron was also being dispersed. H.M.S. Vernon (flag ship of Rear Admiral Inglefield) having sailed for India on the 20th October and the Pato moved from before the English Canton.

There is however no symptom of advantage being taken by the Chinese, or any encroachment or aggression on the part of the Chinese government or people. The latter are so far under control that foreigners can not only move about the back streets of Canton without molestation, but walk round the city walls in now an event of almost daily occurrence; and at spots where strangers were formerly stoned and driven away, they are now received with civility.

John Davis had taken a trip to Cochon China in the Valente, Steamer, accompanied by the Ringdove. He left Hong Kong on the 6th and returned on the 30th October. The object of His Excellency's visit was understood to be to establish commercial relations with the Cochon Chinese.

The expedition was at first received with extreme suspicion, in consequence of their recent Comercio-bellioso-propaganda mission (as the China Mail appropriately calls it) to the French in Turon. Owing to the alarm, little communication was had with the shore for six days. At length two commissioners came on board, and invited the Plenipotentiary to an entertainment and conference on shore next day. A large present of eatables was made to the crews of the two ships, and accepted on condition that a suitable return would be received. A pleasure party was afforded guides and hospitably entertained at night when detained on that day by the leucency of the weather. The people declare that the slighter provocation. The Pinyan Gazette says that the French Steamer, accompanied by the Ringdove, had been ordered all the French Missionaries in his territory to be executed. Query, Whether a desire to use his influence in order to arrest this cruel procedure did not form the principal motive of Sir John Davis' visit?

COMMERCIAL FAILURES AT NEWCASTLE.

This town and neighbourhood are now beginning to feel the consequences of the late money pressure and the disastrous bank stoppage. Five flats in bankruptcy have been opened in the district court during this week,—a number unparalleled in its history. On Monday a fiat was opened against Mr. Robert Imrey, of Jarrow, shawl manufacturer. His liabilities are stated at £23,000, of which £16,000, is said to be due to his bankers. The assets are 3,000l. or 4,000l., and the factory, over which the bank holds a mortgage. Another fiat was opened on the same day against James Hudson, of the Newroad, marine store dealer, whose premises were recently destroyed by fire. The assets are sufficient to pay the liabilities in full, but the bankrupt is a holder of 223 shares in the North of England Bank. Yesterday three flats were opened, one against Mr. Thomas Gates of Sunderland, ship-builder. The liabilities are £12,000l.; and the assets are stated at 50,000l.—Newcastle Guardian.

WRECK OF THE STEPHEN WHITNEY.

(From the "Cork Examiner.")

It becomes my melancholy duty to furnish you with the particulars of one of the most disastrous shipwrecks which has ever occurred on this or perhaps any other coast, involving a sacrifice of human life which is truly fearful to contemplate, and under circumstances of the most extraordinary character. The ship Stephen Whitney sailed from New York on the 18th of October last, bound for Liverpool, having on board, including passengers and crew, 110 persons. During the passage the weather was all that could be desired. The ship had apparently made a fair voyage, and everything promised a fortunate termination to the voyage. Up to Tuesday last nothing worth recording occurred, but on Wednesday the weather set in thick and hazy, and in consequence the commander deemed it advisable to leave to—that is, to stop the vessel, and it was ascertained that the vessel rode in upwards of 30 fathoms of water. After some technical instructions regarding the management of the ship, which will be found more distinctly referred to in a document supplied by the mate of the unfortunate vessel, had been delivered to the crew and acted upon, the vessel was ordered to lay to until about 3 o'clock on Wednesday evening, when the vessel was seen immediately ahead. Owing to the courage and perseverance of the crew, the ship was, with very great difficulty, brought off this point, which was subsequently ascertained to have been Crookhaven. During all this time the weather continued intensely dull and hazy, rendering it quite impossible for even the keenest eye to discern the land, which lay in treacherous contiguity. When the vessel had been relieved from the land, a light was discovered, which, after a brief consultation, was supposed to be the Old Head of Kinsale, and measures were accordingly adopted for making the harbour of Cork. To this fatal error, which supposed the light on Rock Island, near Crookhaven, to be that of the Old Head, the disastrous results that ensued would appear to be in a considerable degree, attributable.

The light on Rock Island, as I have been informed, has been very recently erected; and from all that I could ascertain, the responsible persons on board appeared to be ignorant of its existence. Whether such ignorance involved a culpable neglect will probably be a matter for future investigation. The ship was again hauled off the land, and believing she had sufficient offing a course was steered in relation to the supposed position of the Old Head, which, under the circumstances, was deemed to be the correct one. They kept on in this course until a quarter to 10 o'clock, when the land was signalled immediately ahead, and orders were promptly given to brighten the ship round, but the tremendous sea, which beats up the rocks, issued a stern command, and it was evident the ill-fated ship was doomed. A brief moment only ensued, and a terrific crash followed which instantly assigned numbers to eternity. This single encounter stave in the outside side of the vessel; and in less than half an hour there were not two left together, nor a single article of any description that could afford the means of escape to either passenger or sailor. Unlike the greater number of these disastrous occurrences, where a rope of even a few fathoms affords the unhappy sufferers some means or probability of escape, the victims on this occasion were instantly hurled into eternity without a moment's thought or preparation. In less than 10 minutes, out of 110 human beings, full of life and hope, enjoying the glad anticipation of meeting friends, relatives, and home, 92 had ceased to exist. Through the mercy of Providence, 18 individuals were rescued from the destruction which overwhelmed their associates, and in many instances their escape was effected with little assistance by their own strength or activity. Such was the suddenness of the calamity,—such the fearful havoc which a few minutes' encounter,—that almost all on board were stippled with horror and amazement, and rendered totally inactive by the appalling catastrophe. The survivors, bruised and naked, without shoes or stockings, jacket or waistcoat, scrambled up the rocks, which overhung the sea to the height of nearly 60 feet, and after searching about for some time arrived at two miserable huts, the only human tenements on the island. Here they learned for the first time that they had struck on the western point of West Cliff Island, situated in the channel between the village of Skull and Cape Clear Island, and lying about 7 or 8 miles from the Cape. The two families who reside upon the island were totally ignorant of the melancholy circumstance until the distressed and worn-out mariners entered their wretched cabins for the purpose of craving shelter for the night.

To give you even an imperfect idea of the suddenness of the occurrence and its results, I may mention one circumstance, which, when known to the mate, who appeared to be a respectable and highly intelligent man, was chief officer of the Stephen Whitney, entrusted with a responsible position, and in command of an efficient crew; at 10 o'clock he was shaving, almost naked, over a few soles of turf in a wretched cabin, with the few miserable men who had escaped. As he himself expressed it, it was a change so sudden, so unexpected, and so calamitous, that he found it totally impossible to realize it.

The coast guard authorities were apprised on Thursday of the occurrence, and on the evening of that day the entire of the crew were brought off the island in a large boat belonging to Mr. Bannon, an excise officer. Several of them appeared to be quite exhausted from the cold and exposure to the weather, and the remainder, who were conveyed to the village of Skull. At an early hour on Thursday morning the news was circulated amongst the country people, and shortly after hundreds of small crafts of every description were seen proceeding towards the scene of the wreck. The absence of every vestige of the unfortunate vessel sadly disappointed the expectations of the people, who had to content themselves with picking up whatever floated into sight, instead of, as they anticipated, selecting whatever they thought fit to appropriate.

The cargo, as nearly as the mate can form an idea, consisted of about 10,000 bushels of corn, 1,000 bales of cotton, 100 boxes of cheese, 400 barrels of rosie, 20 boxes of cloaks, and the other articles which may be compressed in a general cargo.

It may be proper to mention here that the point on which the ill-fated vessel was driven ashore, is one of the most dangerous on the entire coast. The rocks are perpendicular to the height of over 50 feet high, and at all seasons of the year the weight is terrific. On the day after the wreck occurred the Government vessel Badger passed through the channel for the purpose of ascertaining whether it was possible to save any portion of the wreck or cargo, but the slightest portion by which she could be recognized was nowhere to be seen. In the words of one of the officers, "it appeared as if the ship had been ground in a mill, or if a number of carpenters had been employed for months for the mere purpose of chopping her up into fragments of some three or four feet in length."—Times, Nov. 19.

INSURRECTION IN SICILY.

A general insurrection had taken place in Sicily. "Our Naples correspondent" says the Sémaphore de Marseilles,— "Communications to us this important fact.—The excessive rigours displayed by the Government for the sake of self-preservation, and the imprisonment of a multitude of citizens, and the central and provincial authorities, have borne their fruit. The King of Naples must now perceive the abyss to the brink of which he has been led by those who advised him to make a fatal use of means of terror. The following is the letter of our correspondent:—

"NAPLES, Dec. 2.—Sicily is on fire. The Constitution of 1812, guaranteed at the time by England, has been proclaimed in the whole island. The soldiers refused to fire upon the people. The steamers expected from Sicily have not arrived. This intelligence, we are assured, arrived by the telegraph, and the interruption in the communication with Sicily must tend to confirm the account of the serious events which have occurred in that island. We have remarked with surprise, that a large English steam-frigate, supposed to be the Terrible, approached our Gulf, and, after taking soundings along the coast from Castellammare, put to sea again without communicating with the shore. The Terrible, no doubt, came from Malta and Sicily."

SURRENDER OF ABD-EL-KADER.

The Sémaphore de Marseilles of the 8th inst., announces the submission of Abd-el-Kader to the Emperor of Morocco. "The steam-packet Philippe Auguste," says that journal,— "Which left Algiers on the 5th inst., entered our harbour last evening. We have received by that vessel the important intelligence of the submission of Abd-el-Kader to the Emperor of Morocco. Bou Hamed, who had been sent by the Emir to the Emperor to offer him his submission, returned to the Emir with a Message from the Emperor, who desired Abd-el-Kader to accept it on the express condition that Abd-el-Kader should immediately disperse his deira; that the principal chiefs who remained with him, should pledge themselves to reside separately on whatever points might be assigned to them by the French Government; and the Emperor of Morocco, and finally, that Abd-el-Kader himself should not quit the residence he held at Algiers, and should only descend upon the coast, that Abd-el-Kader, whose situation had become most critical, had accepted these conditions, and appointed a place for his residence in the neighbourhood of Fez. The deira of the Emir was immediately dispersed, and his baggage was hamstrung in presence of the Moorish Emory, according to the Arab custom."

STRANGE EXECUTION.

Hamburg witnessed a curious proceeding on the 8th inst. The scaffold was erected as for an execution on the principal front of the Exchange, and placed on a large furnace, filled with red-hot wood, and 12 o'clock the wood having been set on fire, the bill of the condemned man was hung violently, as is usual during the execution, inflicting insupportable pain. At 1 o'clock, the man was placed on the scaffold, and the executioner, who was assisted by two of his assistants, in a loud voice, the name of a merchant who had been guilty of fraudulent bankruptcy, and who had been placed, he then displayed to the spectators an enormous bearing the name of the culprit in gigantic characters. He caused next the drum to be beat a second time, at which he tossed the placard in the flames. For 23 years the man had been in a house of correction, and he is liable to be confined in a house of correction for 10 to 20 years, and to be exposed on the pillory, if he takes to flight, his name is publicly burned by the same manner we have described.
