THE ZUID-AFRIKAAN.

CAPETOWN, AUGUST 16, 1847.

This duty, resting upon us as public journalists, of recording the death of the honest and the virtuous, again makes it incumbent upon us to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of one of our fellow citizens. The Hon'ble MICHEIL VAN BREDA, Senior, is no more. He died on the night of Thursday last, on his estate Oranjezicht, after a short illness, at the age of about 73 years.

Generally respected among his fellow colonists on account of his upright and independent character and fervent desire to advocate and promote the colonial interests, the appointment of Mr. BAXTER, as an unofficial member of the Legislative Council, gave general satisfaction. He filled that office for about 13 years with honor to himself, at all times priding in the name of a plain farmer, and ever stating his opinions candidly and without dissembling. Fully sensible of, and highly appreciating civil liberty and privileges, he was ever ready to offer aid and advice in every endeavour to secure the same. The advocates of municipal representation received his zealous co-operation, and when this estimable man was at length conceded, Mr. BREDA was so impressed with its importance, that he readily complied with the desire of his fellow townsmen, who elected him as one of their representatives. In that capacity he for some time filled the office of Chairman to the Board of Commissioners to the satisfaction of his constituents; and, notwithstanding his advanced age, he gave his colleagues a laudable example of zeal, both in the regular attendance of the meetings, and by the soundness of his observations and judgment in all their deliberations. In a word, everything tending to elevate the colonist, and especially his countrymen, in the scale of real improvement, found in him a staunch supporter. He was delighted at viewing the many endeavours to extend and promote the means of instruction for the rising generation. The diffusion of religion seriously occupied his mind, and as a proof that he did not place a mere superficial value upon it, he sent in the Church to which he belonged was but seldom unoccupied. He was also a zealous Free Mason, and attained in that order the highly distinguished degree of acting Provincial Grand Master. The members of the craft lose in him a truly worthy leader—a master who ever made it his duty to teach his followers by example what it means to be a professor of the principles of that distinguished order.

As in public life, Mr. BREDA also distinguished himself in private. He was a warm and sincere friend, a kind husband and tender father. His family, his relatives and friends, lost in him much—very much. His advanced age was no obstacle to his kind and affectionate treatment of all, and it gave him sincere pleasure to see both old and young engaged in innocent recreation. The calmness of mind by which he was so favorably distinguished in his earlier years, remained faithful to him, in more mature age, and did not even forsake him in his last moments. He died resigned and with fortitude, relying on a better life, and leaving all an imitable example.

It is generally known that the pursuits in which Mr. BREDA found his greatest delight, were agriculture and stock-breeding. These occupied all his attentions; whatever was recommended for their improvement, was eagerly tried by him. He was a practical member of the Cape of Good Hope Agricultural Society, and his successful endeavours in the breed of fine woolled sheep justly entitled him to the praise that the colonists, in the western division at least, who are engaged in that pursuit, are greatly indebted for their success to the example set by him and the agricultural firm to which he belonged.

HORRIBLE CASE OF MURDER.

(Extract of a Private Letter dated Beaufort, 7th August 1847.)

A most cruel murder has just been committed in this district. A Tamboekie on the 29th hired himself to one Gert Henkes—and on the 31st, in the middle of the night, attacked his master while in his sleep, and with a hand axe inflicted a severe wound on his forehead. The poor man, on receiving the blow, awoke, and held his arm up which he severed from his body.—In wrestling the hand of the other arm was also cut nearly off, and the ruffian having lost the axe, seized a spade and beat and cut him with it till he was dead. The poor wife (who was in the last stage of pregnancy) attempted to fly with her two children, when he brought her back and told her that if she did not show him where all her money was, he would kill her and her children. She opened the chest, which he rifled of its contents consisting of wearing apparel and it is said Rrs. 10,000 in cash. This is however not credited. He then examined the guns (three), took the best—and took the flints out of the others and decamped. Unfortunately this wretch, which is very extensive, is without a fieldcornet. The inhabitants, however, being roused by so cruel an act, made every exertion and succeeded in apprehending the ruffian whom they found in possession of the gun, powder and clothes, but only Rrs. 385 in cash. It is to be hoped, that this circumstance will open the eyes of the Legislative Council to the folly of doing away with the assistant fieldcornets. Mr. Montagu, in proposing this measure, betrays great ignorance of the localities of the country districts. But for this cruel murderer having been committed, the ruffian never would have been apprehended, as no private individual would have interested himself in the matter. Instead of doing away with the assistant fieldcornets (at least in the frontier districts) he ought to add to their number,—for instance the ward, in which this murder was committed is at least 60 miles long and as many broad. You cannot arbitrarily fix the residence of a field cornet, who very frequently resides at the extreme end of his ward.

If anything happens at the opposite extremity a party must travel 120 miles to report the circumstances to the fieldcornet, the consequences of which is that many rogues escape with impunity. Mr. Montagu commutes the fieldcornets are well paid with £200 a year. That they sit with him in opinion is proved by the fact that two men have successively been appointed to this ward and both have declined the appointment.

STEAM COMMUNICATION.

The following petition has resulted from the proceedings of the late Meeting held in the Commercial Exchange, on the subject of the extension of steam communication to this Colony:

To His Excellency the Right Hon'ble Sir HENRY POTTERING, Bt., K.G.C.B., Governor, &c. &c.
The Memorial of the Undersigned, Inhabitants of Cape Town and its vicinity,

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH,

That having learned that a Company is about to be formed in London for extending the advantages of efficient and regular communication with the mother country, by Steam-Packets, to the Australian Colonies and New Zealand, Memorials wish to make known to your Excellency and her Majesty's Government their sense of the great and numerous benefits which this Colony would derive from the success of this undertaking if the route chosen should be by the Cape of Good Hope.

That in all probability, the decision of the proposed Company as to the route will be influenced by the views of her Majesty's Government as to the general and local or colonial interests that may be promoted. A number of steam-packets constantly moving on any given line, so as to justify them in affording aid and encouragement in contracts for the transmission of mails, and in other matters connected with the public service.

That in any scheme for the extension of Steam Communication between Great Britain and her Colonies, the Cape is entitled to much consideration, from the great extent of its territory, its rapidly extending connections and influence with the people, tribes, and nations of Africa, and the necessity of maintaining here at all times a large Military force, and a large Naval force in time of war, between which and the Imperial Government quick and certain intercourse is of much importance.

h's pilot, and then cast his dead body into the street. To do this is no exceeding the law.
Taoukwang, 27th year, 2nd moon, 20th day, (April, 5, 1847.)
An appeal from the whole province.

Placard issued by the people.

We beg to state that on the 18th day of the moon, (April 3rd) the English Foreigners, without observing the customary forms, suddenly came here with three steam-vessels and one ship of war besides several frigates and small fast boats, and about one hundred soldiers. The truth is that they expected to be attacked and plundered by the coolies, so that more than half their soldiers remained at Hong Kong. From the Bogus, who came straight up to Canton, after splitting all the guns in each of the forts down there. We have prepared only four forts, yet they dare not come when we are prepared.

Instantly all the members of the public hall, the militia and Gentlemen together with the Commissioners of Revenue, the Commissioner of Justice, the Commissary General of the General commanding the Tartar troops, and other public officers, clearly perceived the treachery, and were exceedingly anxious to seize and plunder the vessels, to exterminate the soldiers and by thus inflicting summary punishment to uphold the dignity of the nation.

But Keying alone commanded complaisant deliberation. He is destitute of shame, and would not hesitate to bring a false accusation of murder against one of the Flower Nation, in order to deliver him up to the Foreigners for punishment. Moreover he has permitted them to erect a flying bridge at the entrance of Li-Tow-Lan-street, (long Lane)—to build a Christian Church immediately in front of the Huan-Tempel—besides on the one hand trusting to their explanation of "Peace" whilst on the other hand he allows to pull down the Custom House and the tradesmen's shops and to plunder and to carry off our crusaders of every description. He has lost all virtuous principles, lowered the nation's dignity and destroyed the very life of the people. Nothing can exceed this. Keying has indeed a human face, but he has the heart of a brute.

Now therefore let the public deliberate on a joint petition to the aforementioned Magistrates that they may make a statement to the Emperor requesting that Keying may be sent away.

A respectful statement.

An appeal from the whole city.

The conduct of Sir John Davis was severely criticized.

The Friend of China from that the conditions of the treaty will be violated and that in two years the admission within the gates of Canton will not be accorded.

The same journal says it is surmised that the Chinese instead of punishing the scoundrels who first attacked the English, three wretches convicted for robbery have been substituted; and that the grant of land in the treaty turns out, after a survey, to be a perfect swindle.
