

THE ZUID-AFRIKAAN.

CAPE TOWN, SEPTEMBER 6, 1847.

In the interview which took place in the early part of June last, between H. M.'s High Commissioner and the brave Nt. His Excellency declared, that the violent opposition offered by the notorious chief SANDILLA to a detachment of British troops, had been represented in an exaggerated form by the frontier press. This declaration was not however accompanied by the least explanation respecting the occurrence, and though the report published may perhaps not have been altogether accurate in some minor particulars, the fact of two of Her Majesty's subjects having been killed in that affair, was sufficient to make the public look out with extreme anxiety for the appearance of the measures destined to punish this outrage. Many were the conjectures ventured on that head, but no one was able to unravel the mystery, why such violent conduct on the part of one, who had alleged passive submission, was not visited with immediate chastisement.

The Proclamation published in our last, has put an end to all such conjectures, and unfortunately proved that the reign of wavering has not yet expired. The British Commissioner for the Gaiika Tribes, according to the purport of that document, has been, since the occurrence of that event about the middle of June, in frequent communication with His Majesty SANDILLA, in order to induce him to make reparation for his rebellious and violent conduct, and had even lately intimated to him that two hundred stand of arms, and the seizure of certain thief, would be considered a sufficient reason to pardon, on the Queen's behalf, all that had passed, and to allow matters to revert to their previous friendly footing. This most noble proposal was rejected with majestic indignation by the crafty chief, who, like all of his race, always considered concession as fear; and who had, it is said, adopted steps to defend his country, and to set Her Majesty's authority at defiance.

Nothing can or will perhaps occasion less surprise than the result of that farce; nothing indeed more than the censurable weakness, and the want of determination and vigour displayed towards that irreclaimable savage. The cup of his iniquities appears however to be now considered overflowing, and no other alternative left but the force of arms to call him to account for his unexampled contumacy and to vindicate the tarnished dignity of the British Government. SANDILLA, who had acknowledged the authority of Her Majesty, and had been accepted under its gracious protection, is denounced as a REBEL, and his Country will be invaded by the Colonial Forces on the 1st Sept. All classes and conditions of persons have been invited to be aiding and abetting in carrying out the intended measures, by assembling in commandos, under leaders appointed by themselves, and the booty to be captured by them will become the bona fide property of the captors.

All this sounds extremely well—at least on paper—but also embraces considerations which, in our opinion, are of a more serious nature than would be supposed, if only superficially viewed. The number of men for the required Commandos, for instance, is not stated; and we deem it indeed too much to imagine that the border-farmers—not to mention others—who, for all the losses sustained by them both during the first on break of hostilities and during the long protracted war, have not yet obtained a single fraction as compensation, will now again leave hearths and property in mass, to expose themselves for a second time to the hardships of such an harassing expedition. The colonial cattle, the capture of which concerns the immediate sufferers, and which are now held out as a bait, are known to have been driven from the so-called country of SANDILLA to the extreme borders of the territory of the wily KRELL, who will no doubt make common cause with SANDILLA. The wording of the Proclamation itself appears somewhat clearly to pre-suppose such a combination, and in such a case it would be of the greatest moment previously to ascertain whether, and to be fully satisfied that, the force destined for the invasion is calculated effectually to crush such a more than probable confederacy. We shudder at the idea that such an expedition might result in a discomfiture. This would now be more fatal than the consequences of all the vain demonstrations in which the former operations have been so fertile. But, even if we were fully satisfied of complete success, we cannot approve the plan of compensating the captors with a booty, the greatest portion of which may belong to parties who are prevented by circumstances from joining in the operations, or who may refuse to do so on principle. At such a distance from the scene itself, it is indeed difficult to form a just estimate of the dispositions of those who are thus enticed by terms, which, however guaranteed, may, to say the least of it, occasion the most disagreeable sensations in their minds. Neither do we find that any provision has been made for the maintenance of the assembled burghers during the campaign—a subject which, we think, will furnish matter for serious consideration with them.

Nothing, in our opinion, is however of less value in the whole Proclamation than the wish and the intention expressed by the other Kafir tribes to remain neutral during the hostilities against SANDILLA. The unfortunate Col. HARE directed his first operations against the so-called "war party," and within a few days all the tribes, without designation, were opposed to him not only in the field, but a large number of them also inundated the colonial boundaries, laying waste and destroying everything in their progress. We of course do not know what precautionary measures have been adopted by His Excellency against this more than probable result; but of this we are sure, that the least reverse suffered by the colonial forces will be the signal for a general rise to attempt the long meditated design to drive the white man into the sea. Heaven grant that the Colony may be preserved against the awful disasters of a second general combination, and that it may appear that His Excellency, instructed by the failure of his predecessors, has been convinced of the imperative necessity to be on his guard, not only against the expected opposition, but also against deception and duplicity.

The Post of last Saturday brought no additional information, except that the Kafirs are quite alive as to the intended movement of the troops, which they say is about to take place on or about the 20th instant.

With reference to his former Proclamation, H. M.'s High Commissioner had deemed it expedient to direct the attention of all persons residing on the frontier, to the necessity that will probably arise for removing live stock and other moveable property further in the colony, during the pending hostility; and he recommends them to adopt precautions accordingly.

The removal of the Lt. Governor had created great excitement in Graham's Town, and a requisition to hold a public meeting had been sent in to Sir Henry Pottinger; but as His Excellency had not yet received official notice of the intended removal, he referred the applicants to the Lieutenant-Governor, who immediately granted the request.

In a Supplement added to this number, will be found the Report of the Municipal Committee on the Market System, together with the evidence of the parties examined. The Report is most satisfactory, and the improvements and modifications therein proposed, are calculated, we think, to remove any and all cause for further discontent, which, as we have repeatedly maintained, confined itself to a few.

To the evidence given by a great number of Farmers, among which we find some of the most respectable, intelligent and wealthiest, we beg to call the particular attention of all those who contended that the Market Regulations constituted a serious injury to the free internal trade in the products of the Colony. In addition to the declaration of these parties, we perceive among the documents, annexed to the Report, the names of not less than 281 Farmers who solemnly declare that they fully approve of the existing Market Regulations and Tariff of Market Dues, and desire no alteration in the same.

These stubborn facts ought, in our opinion, to convince the Government that no interference with the existing state of things is either necessary or justifiable. This expressed opinion of those who appreciate the advantages offered by the present Market System are now before them, and we do not hesitate to assert that those opinions are warmly supported by the great majority of those who are in the habit of attending the market almost every week of the year.

The Humayoon fell in with the Isabella on the 15th August, dismantled several of the crew had already left her, and the remainder were on the point of leaving to go to the Dutch Ship "Geeina" on board of which vessel all the provisions, chronometers, charts, and nautical instruments had been put. The Captain of the Humayoon determined to endeavour to save the Isabella, and succeeded! He supplied her with sails, rope, &c., and took her in tow whenever the weather permitted, and when it did not permit, kept in company with her, a part of his crew being on board of her. The Humayoon had the Isabella in tow when H. M. St. Rosemond from Simon's Bay came up to her.

The Isabella, Robert Kerr, Master, from Hong Kong bound to London, was towed into Simon's Bay by H.M. Steamer Rosamond on the 27th ultimo, in a very disabled state, having encountered a hurricane about 40 miles to the Eastward of Cape L'Agulhas, upon the 8th ultimo.

The main-mast head is broken off just above the eyes of the rigg &c., all the other masts, and the bowsprit, yards, rigging, sails, &c., having gone by the board, the whole were out away to prevent injury to the hull, as there was a heavy cross sea, which broke over the vessel, and swept every thing off the deck.

The Isabella has not suffered materially in the hull, and as she makes no water, she will proceed on her voyage when the losses sustained shall have been made good.—Shipping Gazette.

GUANO A REMEDY FOR LEPROSY.

Loop-street, Sept. 1, 1847. Sir,—Having received from the Rev. Mr. Köhling, of the Moravian Mission at Genadendal in this Colony, an account of a remedy as a cure against Leprosy, addressed to the Rev. Mr. Le Troc in London, I beg to enclose the same for publication in your paper. A few months ago you published an account of a cure against Leprosy, and I think it was then also stated, that Government had requested the medical Superintendent of the General Infirmary at Robben Island, together with one other medical gentleman in Cape Town, to make a trial of this new remedy. Whether this has taken place, and if the result has been published, I am not aware, and I think it of much importance to the unhappy beings, who are afflicted with this atrocious disease to have the account of it been sent to the Rev. Mr. Le Troc, also published in this Colony, not doubting for a moment that it will receive the due consideration of the authorities, under whose special care the poor Leper at the Robben Island are placed, and that a trial, and proper account of the result, will be made known to the public. The summer season would be the best for the experiment.

I remain, your truly G. F. JURITZ.

FALMOUTH—JAMAICA.

The Leprosy to which the Moravian Missionaries have thus exposed themselves, has been for ages considered incurable, but whether it really is so, is a matter of doubt. Having met with a very interesting and apparently well-founded account of its cure, I considered it a duty that I owed to these noble servants of the Most High to send you the account as it appeared in one of the columns of the Falmouth Post, a newspaper published in this town. The Editor's remarks are as follows:—

"Valuable as the article of Guano is as a manure, it appears likely, if the following interesting report is to be relied on, to prove valuable in a new and not less precious respect, that of a remedy for disease! and this one of the most virulent with which humanity is afflicted—Leprosy. The following are the facts of the case as stated in the Falmouth Herald, and quoted in a late number of the Falmouth Post:—

"These are the circumstances under which the curative virtues of the Guano became known in Paris. A servant, taken up with Leprosy, was discharged from his employ from apprehension of the contagiousness of his loathsome malady. The unfortunate man, after wandering about some time without shelter, took refuge on one of the Guano Islands of the Pacific. The demand for this substance attracted several thither, and this outcast helped them to land, and received in return, provisions and the means of living. At the close of his days work, he bathed in the sea, and then sought his sleeping place in a part of cave he had hollowed out in a bank of Guano.

"Very soon, and without suspecting the cause, he began to feel unusually well. The spots and ulcers of the flesh insensibly disappeared, his strength soon revived, and at the end of two months, he returned to his service entirely recovered—sound and strong. This marvellous cure attracted the notice of other Lepers, who immediately sought the same abode,

"Then they saw more than H. M. High Commissioner, who in the Proclamation has left the date fixed for the march direct and with complete success. They made public their cure, of which the authenticity and the means by which it has been effected were verified by a committee of scientific physicians. A number of letters, after a short residence on the Island of Cluade, near Paris, returned entirely restored, fresh, and agile. The facts in their cases are established on the authority of an official medical examination, instituted by order of the Government of Paris, and of which the report is preserved among their archives. Moreover, a general commission from the hospitals of Chili has sent numerous letters to the islands of the Pacific, which abound in Guano; and the report is, that their health is daily improving, and complete restoration is anticipated by the physicians."

I have heard of a farmer in England, dying instantaneously from the fact of his putting a bag of Guano to his mouth, but upon mentioning this circumstance to a physician in this town he said, that was most likely occasioned by asphyxiation arising from the Ammoniacal fumes of the substance. I merely give this fact to show that care must needs be exercised. The physician referred to, was of opinion that Guano would be serviceable in cases of Leprosy.

I remain Rev. and dear Sir, your's respectfully, THOS. W. KNIBB, Teacher of Suffolk School, Falmouth, (England.) To the Rev. F. Le Troc.

IS THERE NO PUNISHMENT FOR THIEVES?

Wellington, Aug. 23, 1847.

MR. EDITOR.—Relying on your impartiality, I send you the following statement for publication, in order that the public may judge of it, and that the Legislature should be enabled to amend the law in this respect, and therefore desire that crime be always punished without reference to color, station or age. It is however to be deplored that the law in such cases, cannot be more efficiently applied.

In the course of April 1846, a strong padlock was broken off the cellar of Mr. G. J. Rossouw, and three other locks were afterwards also forced, and when subsequently the padlock was found to be broken, the thief, who was supposed to have effected an entrance into the cellar, by bending outwards the lower part of the door, one of the hinges of which was broken, and on these occasions the cellar was plundered of salt meat, being almost the half of a bullock, a keg of pork, a quantity of wheat, oats, salt, wine, brandy, coloring, saucages, dried fruit, a pint of a tinned hide, and three buckets of a westment. In the month of December again a quantity of salt meat, being almost the half of a bullock, a keg of pork, and brandy, in March, and until the 8th June last, 21 maunds of wheat, and, as usual, wine and brandy. Certain Adam, Mentor and Esau Fortuin, were suspected on good grounds; from time to time something had come to light respecting them, and it appeared that two of them had also visited the cellar of Mr. P. L. Rossouw, and stolen about 4 maunds, and a quantity of wine. Mr. P. L. Rossouw applied to the Magistrate of the Paarl for a search warrant, which was granted, and in the absence of Mr. P. L. Rossouw, Mr. G. J. Rossouw's wife and daughter, the lower part of the door, one of the hinges of which was broken, and on these occasions the cellar was plundered of salt meat, being almost the half of a bullock, a keg of pork, a quantity of wheat, oats, salt, wine, brandy, coloring, saucages, dried fruit, a pint of a tinned hide, and three buckets of a westment. These cases were investigated on the 14th of June, before Mr. Justice of the Peace, Mr. Addy, ordered the fieldcorn to apprehend Rossouw, the wife of Adam, who had harboured all the stolen goods, and this was also done.

that day, it was due to the majority, who would have attended at any other time. But it did not follow that those who chose to attend were to be insured especially in company with ladies. Nothing can justify the conduct of the young men who assembled before the door of the ball and assailed even the ladies as they arrived with hisses, groans and insulting cries. It is not in this manner that a dissonant should be manifested.

The police interfered. Instead of trying to calm the troubled spirits in the crowd as it was their duty—to beg them to separate and to cease such disorder, they used violence, and proceeded to arrest some of the individuals, a step which was quite useless; for there was no violation of law, no offence against the Penal Code; there was only an improper manifestation which was contrary to good manners and we confess far from respectable.

Four young men were arrested, conducted to the police and shut up in the prisons destined for drunken sailors and other such offenders. The parents and friends of the prisoners were soon made aware of what had taken place and they lost no time in interfering in their behalf. Mr. Anderson at first refused to receive any bail. But was at length obliged to consent, with much reluctance however, through the intercession of the Colonial Secretary and Procureur General, who both happened to be at the ball.

The next day Mr. Anderson having consulted one of his most intimate friends a lawyer, again demanded the young men who had been set at liberty and they were imprisoned a second time. The balls protested against this conduct, the officers on service answered that their instructions were positive, and Mr. Anderson was no where to be found.

Recourse was then had to justice. A request was presented to the "Judge d'Instruction" according to law. This Magistrate with his usual zeal repaired immediately to the Police and finding that the prisoners were detained without any order from a competent magistrate, ordered them to be liberated. His order was not executed by the Police! The Pruders of Mr. Anderson took precedence of that of a Judge! What abuse of authority have we here—Are we in a British colony? Is Her Majesty represented here? If so, where is the authority of the representative? Where is the authority of the law? We blush to relate these facts....

The "Judge d'Instruction" seeing his authority set aside, withdrew and forwarded the order he had given for the liberation of the prisoners to the Queen's Procureur. The friends of the young men detained also applied to this magistrate who is particularly charged with the execution of the mandates of justice, (art. 17 Code d'Instruction.) This Magistrate sent the order of the "Judge d'Instruction" to Mr. Anderson. He was engaged elsewhere; dining at Government House. The authority of the Queen's Procureur was as powerless as that of the judge and the prisoners were kept in custody till Saturday at half past four in the afternoon when the Judge d'Instruction received a demand from the Queen's Procureur, to proceed to an examination of the affair and requiring an order to retain them in prison.

The Judge d'Instruction immediately proceeded to the examination, but refused the order to retain the prisoners for reasons taken from the law and resulting from the insignificance of the complaint, and the fact of the residence of the accused in the town. It is evident that the Queen's Procureur acted with excessive severity.

The prisoners were conducted from the Police to the "Judge d'Instruction" by an officer and 8 policemen as if they were malefactors and whose escape was feared.

The judge then observed that having already ordered the liberation of the accused he could not allow his order to be violated before his face; he therefore begged the officers and policemen to withdraw.

The Deputy Commissary of Police replied that he could not obey this request, as he was acting under superior orders. The judge replied that he knew of no order superior to that of a judge administering justice in the name of Her Majesty; that it was impossible for him to proceed thus, under the control of the public force; and that he suspended his examination until his order was respected.

Communications were established between the office of Police and the exterior, and after remaining some time the Deputy Commissary withdrew as he declared, in consequence of superior orders. It was ten at night. The accused were liberated and the "Judge d'Instruction" drew up his report to be communicated to the law officer of the Crown for the further continuation of the affair hereafter.

Let us hope that those persons who have refused the respect and obedience that is due to a Judge of Her Majesty will be prosecuted by the law officer of the Crown and that such acts will not be tolerated.

As for M. Braneau he has shown a noble example of energy, firmness and zeal for the protection of the liberties of citizens and for the maintenance of the authority of the law and we do not hesitate to declare that he has deserved the gratitude of the whole of the inhabitants of the colony.—Mauritian.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT AT HAYTI.

By the arrival of the sloop John Bull, Patten, in four days from Port-au-Prince, we learn (says the Journal) that the Haytien bark Le President was blown up at 20 minutes to 12 o'clock, on the 23rd ult., whilst she was engaged in firing minute guns in celebrating mass for the repose of the soul of President Guirriere, who died two years ago. At the time she was blown up there were 80 convicts in chains on board in the hold, who all perished. The captain, in going on shore, left the first lieutenant in charge, who followed afterwards, leaving the boatswain in charge, who at the time the accident happened was engaged with others on board smoking, drinking and playing cards. The accident occurred from a spark lighting on the powder, which was placed on the deck to be dried.—Jamaica Times, May 5.
