make the following unpleasant statement which I address to the following members of the Legislative Council...

I am, Sir, your truly, H. BANTJES.

Sir,—I perceive from the proceedings of the Municipal Board that the Commissioners have proposed to increase the salaries of the Municipal officers.

Sir,—Experience teaches that a postscript is generally the best part of a letter and most to the purpose.

I am perfectly satisfied that the inhabitants of George and Beaufort would readily assent to the making of Spitskop for the line proposed by the Rev. gentleman in the postscript to his letter...

I am not mistaken. Kriega and Groot River are not beyond the parish of his reverence, and surely he will consent to the inhabitants of those localities to deem Seven Weeks Poort the shortest road to Mossel Bay?

to accept the bill to a certain extent, and not in order to be considered the difference of opinion amongst us...

Without pretending to any exact intelligence of Lord Palmerston's feelings upon the subject of the Russian aggression, we know, from the whole tenor of his conduct...

The state of opinion upon the Cabinet crisis—if such it may be called—can be clearly gathered from these extracts.

It is not to be concealed that Lord Palmerston, perhaps the most popular of our statesmen, has suffered in public estimation by the step.

The recent intelligence from the east of war has given a new aspect to the position of all the parties concerned, and it does not alter the true character of the contest...

The details of the naval engagements in the port of Sinope, terminating in the total destruction of the Turkish fleet, with a loss of 5000 men, will be found elsewhere...

All this is sufficiently disastrous. It discloses not merely a widespread sense of hostility, but it betrays the indignation of Turkey, which left to her own resources to make head against her aggressors and her ancient enemies.

We speak of the opinions of the temperate and thoughtful who are in the spoils of Russia, and the extent of the mischief which is to be expected and decisively checked...

The following is abridged from the Home News and the English journals, up to the 24th December last.

The retirement of Lord Palmerston from the Administration of which he was so distinguished and influential a member, is the event which, for the moment, occupies more attention than even the progress of hostilities on the Danube...

The Chronicle repeats this assertion, expressed at the same time in surprise at Lord Palmerston's resignation, as it is generally supposed that the new Reform Bill will rather fall below than exceed the expectations of the majority of Reformers.

The conduct of Russia in the engagement at Sinope, says the Nonce Times, is so odious that it is necessary to go back to times of complete barbarism to find an example.

We translate from the correspondence of the Nonce Times the Mogador and Retribution only returned from Sinope on the 9th.

The underlined representatives of Austria, France, Great Britain, and Prussia, assembled at a conference at Vienna, have agreed and instructed to declare that their respective Governments build with profound regret the commencement of hostilities between Russia and the Porte...

The Postscript of the Home News, dated 24th December, 12 o'clock, contains the following:—FRANCE.—The news from Constantinople is looked forward to with great interest...

FRANCE.—The news from Constantinople is looked forward to with great interest, as it is generally believed that it will confirm the report in circulation for the last few days, that the English and French fleets have entered the Black Sea...

preventing the recurrence of such a disaster as at Sinope it is most ardently to be wished, for the honour of the two nations...

On the 11th inst. there was much agitation on the Black Sea, in consequence of a statement that the Turkish admiral had wished to enter the Black Sea...

THE ZUID-AFRIKAN.

Cape Town, February 23, 1854.

How will the discovery of gold in South Africa affect this colony?—is a question that has been a good deal agitated of late, and on which there is a great diversity of opinion.

Some of our readers, far gone in golden dreams, may feel disposed to sneer with contempt at our frigid maxims, and oppose to them that self-convincing logic of the young and the sanguine.

But we have left one argument unanswered: "if we remain at home we are sure to get nothing." It is exactly the reverse. By remaining at home while others leave (for leave they will in spite of anything we may say to dissuade them)

The R. M. Steamer Hydaspes arrived in Table Bay on Monday last. Her date is from Calcutta the 15th, Madras the 20th. Point de Galle, 25th January, and Mauritius Feb. 8.—By the overland mail European news to the 24th December had been received, some items of which are transferred to our columns.

The Bengal Harkurs of the 7th January, says that a report was current in the Boreen on the 4th, that the war between Turkey and Russia was raging furiously and that the allied fleets were bombarding Odessa.

AUSTRALIA.—The following Weekly Report is from the Melbourne Argus of 19th December:—

During the past week, business, especially as regards the iron trade, has rather improved; but the non-arrival of the Harbinger has still checked speculation, and prevented improvement in prices.

Some of our readers, far gone in golden dreams, may feel disposed to sneer with contempt at our frigid maxims, and oppose to them that self-convincing logic of the young and the sanguine.

It is understood that in 1851 there were in California above 100,000, engaged in the raising of gold or in the employments subordinate to or immediately connected therewith.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A fatal accident occurred on board the Hydaspes on Monday afternoon. Whilst raising the old screw before taking in the new one, the sheers employed for the purpose capsized, and falling forward with a tremendous crash, Mr. Bryer, the chief officer, was crushed under its weight and immediately expired.
