Chamberlain, No. 5, 15th August, 1854.
With regard to the first, Mr. Gladstone says nothing of the second, and would have us accept the idea that the united efforts of the British people, and the British Government, in the hope of bringing about a just and lasting peace, is the surest way of preserving the integrity of the Empire. He would have us believe that, by doing so, we may have the satisfaction of knowing that the work of our fathers is for ever to be continued.
