

THE ZUID-AFRIKAAN.

Cape Town, January 3, 1856.

The transition from one year to another, though not marked by any memorable event, is yet a period of solemn reflection to all but thoughtless people. Its importance to every human being as a man, as a member of society and as a Christian, is a theme for the philosopher, the moralist and the divine—a theme of great interest, no doubt, but rather foreign to the speculations that are more peculiarly our province. But the years of empires, like those of individuals, are numbered, and nations have stages of existence corresponding to the periods of human life—they pass from infancy to maturity, from that to decline and dissolution. What is true of mighty empires is no less so of little communities like our own. It is not long that this colony has come of age, and the task of managing our own affairs is rather new to us. Some people, averse to progress, would have prolonged our minority, though, on a trying occasion, we had shown our guardians that we could shape our own course, and follow it out with prudence and decision. Her Majesty's Ministers thought more favorably of our fitness for self-government, how have we justified that opinion? A retrospect on the year fifty-five must answer that question. The results of the second session of our Parliament, when compared with the first, cannot be called unsatisfactory, whether we consider the number or the importance of the bills passed by the Council and Assembly and presented to the Governor for his assent in Her Majesty's name. In the first session only six bills were passed, in the second, fifteen. Among these were a bill for the better organisation and regulation of an armed and mounted police force upon the frontier, a bill for encouraging the importation of European laborers, and a bill for creating Divisional Councils. Among the bills that have passed several have called forth censure from parties, who would have opposed them, had they been in Parliament. Now that is exactly as it should be; and the Council and Assembly, far from taking offence, will rejoice to see British subjects exercise the privilege that belongs to them, of speaking out freely on every subject. On the other hand people of mature judgment will exercise that privilege with prudent reserve, and abstain from positive assertions about the merits of parliamentary enactments, until they have seen them for some time in operation. The parties that have constructed an engine must be supposed to be better judges of it than others who have only looked at it; but when the engine has been at work for a certain time, the investors of it lose their advantage, because it is now tested by the results, which are alike open to the observation of all.

On looking back to the year that has just closed, our attention is not exclusively due to Parliament. The indefatigable exertions of our respected Governor are certainly entitled to our acknowledgments, and though His Excellency's policy may not appear to us in every respect unexceptionable, it would be unjust to close our eyes to his earnest and persevering endeavours for the good of the Colony, which have so wholly engrossed his time since he came to our shores, that a stronger constitution than His Excellency seems to possess, might have felt the effects of over exertion.

When we cast our eyes on the mercantile body, it is not so much what they have done, as what they have suffered, that occupies our attention. It would be ungracious in our first issue after New-year to point again to the causes of those sufferings. This is not a time for reproaches. Heavy losses have been sustained in various quarters, and when lofty trees come to the ground with a crash, their neighbours cannot but lose some branches, and the shrubs, that lately flourished in their shade, will be either crushed by the fall or shrivelled by exposure. Mutual forbearance, strict economy and activity tempered with prudence, are the only remedies for evils of that description.

There is no reason for despondency. If the mineral wealth of Namaqualand falls considerably short of what sanguine speculators had anticipated, our staple article, wool, is steadily increasing, and other exports of secondary importance are not declining. The frontier is reaping the fruits of the sound policy of our late Governor, the much lamented General Sir GEORGE CATHCART. It has pleased Providence to use him as an instrument to avert the scourge of war at a time when we would have been ill prepared to meet it. The general health of our population has also been satisfactory, and we are looking forward to the introduction of a new element in our community, which may in time supply one of our greatest wants—tractable laborers.

After looking around us we cannot help reverting in silence to our own exertions during the last twelve months, and the question presents itself: has De Zuid Afrikaan deserved well or ill of its readers? It is not for us to answer that question; we shall acquiesce in the award of our readers. An individual has accused us of manifesting anti-British feelings. This is a grave imputation and we should be sorry to deserve it. If we have from time to time given extracts from continental papers reflecting rather harshly on national peculiarities of the English nation, condemning their policy, or even judging disparagingly of their share in the Russian campaign, does that prove that we harbour anti-British feelings? Can we not be loyal subjects, and at the same time tell our English readers what people say of their countrymen on the continent? If it had been our object to republish indiscriminately every odious reflection on the English, their Government, their civil and military authorities &c. we might have found in English papers, and chiefly in the Times, a richer harvest of abuse, than could be gathered from all the continental papers put together; but we can make allowance for the bitterness of disappointment, and conceive that foreigners are more impartial than Englishmen, whose national feelings were wounded, because the exploits of their army appeared less brilliant than those of their allies.

DEATH BY DROWNING.—On Saturday afternoon last, Dr. Montgomery, of Malnesbury, who had been in town for some time previous, went out to Camp's Bay, in company of Mr. J. Barry, for the purpose of bathing. Whilst both were in the water Dr. M. was seized by a fit of apoplexy, and sunk. His body subsequently rose to the surface and was with difficulty brought to the shore.

A similar accident occurred on Monday. Two colored lads, between 12 and 14 years, went, in company with a third, to Hutchinson's dam, close to the property of Mr. J. Jurgens, Sen., for the purpose of bathing, being evidently unaware of the depth (about 30 feet) and the dangerous nature of the dam. One of them went in first, and becoming at once aware of his dangerous position, cried for assistance, when the second went to his aid, and both were unfortunately drowned. After the lapse of an hour the bodies were recovered.

NEW LIBRARY.—The Governor has granted a piece of ground at the S. E. corner of the Parade, for the erection of a public library. As soon as the necessary arrangements shall have been completed, the work will be commenced.

MR. ADVOCATE VAN RYNEVELD.—This gentleman, well known as an advocate of the late Court of Justice as well as the Supreme Court, and subsequently as interpreter to the last named, died on Saturday last, in the 61st year of his age. Mr. Ryneveld had suffered some years from nervous debility.

The following Testimonial (one selected from thousands) is submitted, as an instance of the remarkable effects produced by this celebrated Pill:—

To Thomas E. Cornwall Seales, Esq.,
Islington, near London.
Sir,—I desire voluntarily to bear witness to the good effects of your celebrated Pills. I have been suffering for the last 22 years from a torpid liver and bad digestion, accompanied with pains in the back and over the right shoulder, together with heartburn, flatulency, a disagreeable taste in the mouth on rising from bed, headache, and many other minor symptoms. A friend insisted on my trying "Cooper's Universal Pills" which she had constantly been in the habit of taking for the last 12 years, with the greatest advantage. I can only add that since taking them I have been perfectly cured, but still continue their use, occasionally, as an "Apertient Medicine." They have also been very successful in curing my eldest child of the Tape-worm.

I shall, in gratitude, recommend them to my friends, and am, Sir, your grateful servant,
JANE MORTON KIRKMAN.

Dear Sir—Ever since I have been in this Colony I have been troubled with pains in the region of the loins, accompanied with extreme debility and confirmed Dropsical Symptoms; I have gone through several Courses of medicine, having been attended by several Doctors to no purpose. "Cooper's Universal Pills" however, have done that for me what the Doctors could not do, and I am now in the enjoyment of excellent health. You are at liberty to make use of my name and to refer to me personally if necessary.
