THE NEW YEAR.

ANOTHER year has been gathered to the Past, never to return amongst us and now lies buried, not beneath the cere and yellow leaves of a northern winter; but amid the fresh and blooming flowers of a southern climate, emblematical of peace and good will.

We have now entered upon the new year of 1870, which has dawned upon us with all the genial features of a prosperous birth; and it be-with a general cargo, anchored in Table Bay, the vessel having put in to land Captain and Mrs. B M Maxter and part of the crew (fourteen in number) of the British ship Haering, which vessel was abandoned on the 1st December, in lat. 34 S, long. 60 E.

The vessel left Greenock on the 25th of August, and proceeded on her voyage, without anything worthy of particular notice occurring until the 30th day of November, on which day, at 4 a.m., a strong smell of paraffine was noticed about the ship, and on going below the hold was found to be filled with gas and smoke, but no fire was discernible.

GADGE.—ESCAPE OF BROWN.—Brown, the notorious prison-breaker, in company with another prisoner, by name Piet Buckley, escaped from the George prison on Tuesday evening, and broke into the blacksmith's shop of Mr. W. Truter, in Montagu-street, where they procured files, hammers, &c., wherewith to loosen Brown's chains.

The vessel left Greenock on the 25th of August, and proceeded on her voyage, without anything worthy of particular notice occurring until the 30th day of November, on which day, at 4 a.m., a strong smell of paraffine was noticed about the ship, and on going below the hold was found to be filled with gas and smoke, but no fire was discernible.

can be accomplished in the way of shooting or hunting the larger game. Messrs. Vowe and Coleman were likewise warned by old travellers, that the season was too far advanced, and that were they to proceed, it would be at the expense of their own, and not improbably of their own lives.
