

...and out of his certificate of indemnity, the consequence being that the latter gentleman felt himself necessitated to apply for a mandamus to the Court of Queen's Bench to compel the commissioners to oblige him from further prosecution. On that occasion the Lord Chief Justice and Justice Blackburn indignantly repudiated the proceedings and the overbearing demeanour of Mr. Chisholm Anstey, and the rest of the commission, and while they expressed an opinion that Mr. van der Byl had not solicited the suffrages of the Bridgewater electors with the view of spending any money (which declaration is of itself sufficient to absolve Mr. van der Byl from the charge of bribery), the Lord Chief Justice Cockburn observed with reference to the conduct pursued by Mr. Chisholm Anstey towards one of the witnesses:— "This was an animadversion beyond the scope of the Commissioners' functions; and though he would not say the term 'disgraceful' was altogether inopportune, he did not think that it was the witness that the remark ought to be applied." It might not have been difficult, upon these cord-mansary expressions from the Bench, to have foretold the result, which was, that the Attorney-General withdrew any further proceedings in Mr. Lovibond's case, and we suspect that although Mr. van der Byl and the rest are to be tried at the forthcoming Spring Assizes at Taunton that the law officers of the Crown will see the absurdity of sending such a trumpety affair to a jury, but that they will surrender the case as unjustifiable and untenable. We feel convinced that no honest and independent jury would so far impel the liberty of the subject, and be so blind to justice as to entertain the charge against Mr. van der Byl for a single moment.

To the numerous friends and well wishers of Mr. van der Byl at the Cape we feel assured that although the attempt to affix a stigma on his fair character has been willfully and injudiciously made, and although some parties, prompted by a spirit of jealousy and envy have used their endeavours to sacrifice him as a useful and earnest representative of his constituents in Parliament, it must be gratifying to find that the most eminent of the Judges on the English Bench absolve him from even the shadow of corrupt practices; but we are too well aware that, amid the feverish heat of political contention there does not exist that brotherly love between parties which ought to mark such contests. But jealousy of a successful man is too frequently the rule instead of the exception, although the scriptural example of Cain and Abel ought to serve as a warning to those whose conduct to others sometimes is apt to inflict upon them penalties on which they sometimes little reckon, but which may not be altogether undeserved.

We are sure that in this colony there can be but one opinion on the unjust treatment received by Mr. van der Byl with regard to the Bridgewater election, the more especially as he is known to be too high minded in worldly transactions, too liberally disposed, and too anxious to benefit both his English constituents and this colony, to lead himself to such transactions as those falsely, we believe, charged against him.

The Customs Duties during the month of February amount to £7,690 12s. 3d., showing an increase of £5,234 2s. 1d. on the two months of this year over the corresponding period of 1869. The wharfage dues collected during the months of January and February amounting to £2,185 10s. 3d., which compared with the corresponding period of the year 1869, shows a considerable decrease.

DEPARTURE OF THE MAIL.—The royal mail steamer Norseman will leave for England, with the bi-monthly mails, to-morrow afternoon, the mail by her closing at the General Post Office at 1 p.m. Newspapers and parcels intended to be sent by the mail steamer must be posted by 11 o'clock on the day of its departure. The Norseman takes a large cargo of colonial produce and also several passengers from Port Elizabeth and Cape Town.

It is currently reported that from a private letter received in Cape Town from Mauritius, Sir Henry Barkly expects to arrive at the Cape in June next.

The arguments in the case of Mr. Green, the Civil Commissioner of Colesberg, was closed in the Supreme Court on Tuesday, their Lordships reserved judgment.

The R.M. St. Norweman, arrived in Table Bay on Tuesday afternoon, having made the passage from Algoa Bay in 54 hours. She brought several passengers for Cape Town and England, among whom is Mr John Marcus, the highly respected merchant of Burghersdorp, who is about to visit his native land after an absence of upwards of fifteen years. Previous to leaving Burghersdorp Mr Marcus was presented with an address from the inhabitants, and a very handsome Masonic emblem from the brethren of that craft as a slight acknowledgment for the great interest taken by that gentleman in the prosperity of Freemasonry at Burghersdorp.

The Koranna prisoners, numbering upwards of one hundred, arrived in town by the first train on Saturday morning under the escort of a force of police sent down to Wellington to meet them. They were received by a large body of police at the station and marched up to their respective quarters or chiefs, Piet Rooi and Capido, were sent up by a special conveyance. It is said these men are to be sent to Robben Island for the present.

THEFT.—On Sunday evening some person walked into the house of Mr C Dickson, in Orange-street, and stole a valuable silver-plated tray plate, and a brown bull-dog.

ON Sunday a man was arrested by one of the police constables for having in his possession an iron stove, of which he could give no satisfactory account. The man is in custody, awaiting the identification of the article by the rightful owner.

THEFT OF LEAD PIPING.—During Sunday night, a quantity of lead piping, about thirteen feet, was stolen from the premises of Mr. J Powrie Boom-street. As the piping was some eight or nine feet high, the theft must have been effected by the aid of a ladder, or by one man standing on the back of another, and so cutting the pipe.

Mr Edward Chiappini, well known as a merchant for many years in Cape Town and Natal, died suddenly on Monday last from a paralytic stroke. He had a seizure of a similar character in Natal some months ago, by which he was very much shaken.

On Saturday afternoon the body of the Custom-house official, Gerald Mahoney, who had been missing since Friday morning, was found in the dock, and immediately conveyed to the New Hospital for the Police Surgeon to examine. The deceased had evidently struggled hard to save himself from drowning, as his hands, arms, knees, and feet were stiffened, as if in the act of swimming. The right eye-lids, upper and lower, bore the marks of a struggle; and the face and chest were somewhat congested; but in any other respect the body presented no marks of violence except those usual to death by drowning. The funeral of the deceased took place on Sunday afternoon, starting from the residence of a relative in Wade-street. The wife of the unfortunate man gave birth to a child on Friday morning, and in consideration of her state, his death has not yet been made known to her. She is under the impression that his employment is of so strict a nature that he cannot be permitted to leave even for a moment. Great sympathy is felt by all who know Mrs. Mahoney for her deplorable position.

MAN DROWNED.—On Sunday evening a coloured young man named Nicholas L. Gilbey was drowned near the South Wharf. It appears that at about six o'clock the deceased (who was the worse for liquor) and another man went down to the beach beside the South Wharf to bathe. The deceased swam to some distance, when suddenly he was seen to sink and did not rise again. Attempts were made to rescue him, but without success, and it was not until about an hour after the event that the body was recovered by one of the port-boat men named Johnson, who fished it up with a boat-hook.

The fine steamer Agamemnon, from England, arrived on Tuesday morning after one of her usually smart passages of twenty-nine or thirty days. Of general news by her the following is the most important. The steamers Diomed and Prize, are to be sent out through the Suez Canal, and the Agamemnon will in all probability receive orders in China to return by that route. The navigation of the canal does not appear to be altogether satisfactory. The owners of the steamer Cleator, from Liverpool to Bombay, in a letter to the secretary at Lloyd's, state that it was quite true that the steamer ran ashore in the Suez Canal, and that her cargo had to be discharged into lighters to get her off.—New York, January 27.—Mr Peabody's remains will not leave the Monarch until Saturday. A grand funeral pageant will take place on Tuesday, Bishop Neely conducting the religious ceremonies. The funeral fleet is now in line heavily draped in mourning.—Fine weather prevails.—Kairo, Jan. 22.—Sir Samuel Baker reports from Kartoum, under date the 18th instant, as follows: "We have arrived here all well. I found that Galla Pasha, the Governor-General of Soudan, had completed preparations necessary for the expedition, and we expect to proceed within a week with 1000 soldiers." We are now getting our material ready, and Mr Higginbotham, the engineer is coming up with the remainder of our forces.—A terrible catastrophe, reminding one in its horrible results of the Santiago tragedy, had occurred in Liverpool. Many lives have been lost, numbers of people have been maimed, and the dire calamity will cause misery to many a Roman Catholic family in Liverpool. During a service in a Roman Catholic Chapel a cry of fire was raised. There was a rush to the door, and fifteen people were trodden to death.—The Duke of Montpensier has been elected a member of the Spanish Cortes by the Asturias constituency.—The London wool market has continued firm for both Continental and English produce, and full prices have been realized.

The House of Assembly was occupied on Monday with the debate on the Capital Punishment Abolition Bill, the second reading of which was moved by Mr Porter in an exhaustive speech of nearly two hours' duration. It was seconded by Mr Watermeyer. The Rev Mr Brown led off the opposition, followed by Mr Distin on the same side. Mr Solomon spoke for the Bill, and Messrs Merriman and Barrington against it,—on which the amendment was carried without a division. In the course of the afternoon two messages were received from the Governor. One of them transmitted a Bill codifying and amending the Customs Laws. It is of immense length, and was read a first time. The second message was on the subject of the Reserved Schedules. On Tuesday afternoon, Mr Advocate Thompson moved that the House go into committee to consider his draft address to the Crown in reference to Earl Granville's dispatch. Mr Smith objected to the introduction into such an address of any thing involving party politics, and held that it should be confined to a request for the continuance of the troops on account of the peculiar circumstances of the colony. He therefore moved that the matter be referred to a select committee, consisting of Mr Molteno, Mr Reitz, Mr Thompson, Mr Quin and himself. This, after a discussion, was carried.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN GRAHAM'S TOWN.—Shortly before twelve o'clock on Tuesday night a fire broke out in High-street, on the premises known as the Advertiser office. The alarm was speedily given, and a large crowd collected, but for a considerable period no water could be obtained for the engines, and the work of destruction went merrily on. The fire on the premises of Messrs O'Brien and Sheffield was confined to that part, which was occupied as a bookseller's and stationer's shop. They are insured for £500. The Advertiser office is bounded on the east by the drapery store of Mr. J E Davis, and on the west by the shop of Mr. Rashby, watchmaker and jeweller. Both of these gentlemen are, of course, sufferers by the conflagration—the latter more especially. Mr Davis's goods were being removed from his store, with the idea of saving them from the fire, in most hasty and over-zealous style; and the whole of them would probably have passed through this trying ordeal, but for the presence of mind of Mr. Wm. Webb, who, observing the fire engines gaining an ascendancy over the flames, interposed, and was by this means the instrument of saving considerable loss. Mr Davis's stock is insured in the Graham's Town and Union offices. Mr Rashby was less fortunate; his loss is of a serious character. Yesterday he was in possession of a stock of watches and jewellery, the value of which he estimated at £1,200. All that he has saved, with the exception of a lot of goods so much injured by the fire as to be of little or no value, is about £250 worth of stock, which he kept in his Milner's iron safe, and which the fire was unable to touch. We are sorry to learn that Mr Rashby was totally uninsured. The origin of the fire, as usual, is an impenetrable mystery. No one appears to know the cause; the probability is that a spark from a pipe falling amongst loose papers, after smouldering for an hour, burst into a flame. There are other conjectures—none of them supported by any known fact.—Journal.

A TRADER'S ADVENTURE IN ALBANIA.—A few months ago two Grass-Reinesters took it in their head to go on a trading trip beyond the Orange River. In carrying out their plan they, after a short time, found themselves in Albania, that now notorious country to which notorious speculators sought to entice the young blood and muscle, with some of the cash of the colony—what the colony can ill do without. After much travelling to and fro, and much swopping, intermixed with a few little cash transactions—very few—they found themselves selling goods to a farmer named H—, on what conditions we cannot tell. One of them had occasion to visit some neighbouring farms, and to that end borrowed farmer H's cart and pair. Wherever he called everyone said "farmer H will not pay you; he never pays anybody. He humbugs every trader who sells him anything. The trader unwilling to wait and try his luck in our courts, and anxious to get home in the colony, takes what he can get from him and finds himself 'done completely.' Our Grass-Reinester declared he would not be 'done' by Farmer H, and they would see it. The people laughed and said "well, you'll see." The trader, scarcely determined to bring H to a full settlement at once, returned his horses but left his cart at the wagon; and going straightway to the house said he wished to come to a settlement. H. wanted his cart back before he would hear anything of the kind. Our trader said, "no, settle first and there's your cart." At last H. sent to the trader for his cart, that he might settle with the obstinate trader. The cattle came but they were such a wretched lot, and such a price did their master ask for them, that a settlement with anything but cash was out of the question. Cash was not forthcoming and our traders tied the cart behind their wagon and spanned it. They had not got far when half-a-dozen Griks, armed with the powers of the law to seize the cart and summon the trader to appear "at Sufoik before the court of the Paramount Chief Nicholas Waterboer." Our traders, reinforced by their people, made the most extensive front they could and declared they would not give up the cart until H. paid them for their goods. The Griks began the seizure. A regular fight for the cart followed. Once the Griks had it in full possession, when a vigorous onslaught by the traders, flanked by their men—two in number—dispossessed them, and soon again it was fastened to the wagon. The Griks would not venture another attack, so they withdrew, no doubt to tell the Paramount Chief's chief men how desperately they had striven and fought for the cart, and how they had tried to the superior numbers of the traders and their people. When the traders had got rid of those officers of the law they lost no time in making for the Colony; and soon they were across the Orange, congratulating themselves that Farmer H. had not 'done' them, for they had a capital cart of his for £11 worth of goods.

In the scuffle, or fight, to get possession of the cart the Albanian law officers lost all their documents—the summons of the Paramount Chief, magistrate to the trader to appear before him; the order to seize the cart and harness, and Farmer H's affidavit on which these had been granted. These became the spoils of the victors and have since afforded them many a laugh. H's affidavit says the trader had given him credit until he (the trader) returned from the Diamond Fields, that he offered him four head of cattle in settlement of the account and that his cart was worth £30. Whether the matter will end here or not remains to be seen. Grass-Reinester.

COLESBERG, 22ND FEB.—Fine rains have again fallen in and around Colesberg during Saturday, Sunday and Monday last.—A native wagon driver, who had proceeded to the Orange River with a party of pleasure seekers, met with a painful accident last week. In endeavoring to repair a broken disselboom, his thumb was nearly severed from the hand.—A young native girl, residing at the camp location, met with severe injuries one evening last week. The girl and a female companion had been romping together, when the latter became angry, and threw the girl violently to the ground and afterwards struck her several heavy blows about the body. The girl's neck was nearly broken from the violence with which she was thrown, and her body severely bruised from the effects of the beating. Although the poor girl was very nearly killed, her relatives have taken no steps to bring the offender to justice, they being under the impression that she cannot be punished unless her victim should die from the effects of the violence.—Herald.
