GREENBLATT—SACK.

A simple but pretty wedding was solemnised at the Potchefstroom Synagogue at noon last Sunday, when Miss Rae Sack, youngest daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. Ch. Sack, was married to Mr. Eli Greenblatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Greenblatt, both of Potchefstroom. Mr. Smukler officiated.

The bride looked charming as she walked down the aisle on the arm of her father, accompanied by the unterfuhrers, who were Mr and Mrs. Greenblatt, parents of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Sack, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, whilst Mr. H. Greenblatt, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

After the ceremony over fifty guests sat down to a family luncheon at the bride's residence, they being chiefly relatives and friends from various parts of the country.

Mr. A. P. Fleishack, with whose legal offices the bride has been connected for the past ten years, in a very neat toast, made reference to the fact that the bride had the distinction of being the first lady attorney to be admitted in the Transvaal, if not in South Africa. The Rev. Gudelewski proposed the toast of the "Machetonim." Suitable responses were made by the bridegroom and various members of both sides of the family, happy little speeches being made in English, Yiddish and Hebrew, the Talmud being freely quoted.

The lusty singing of Jewish and Hebrew songs added enjoyment to a very homely and happy Simcha, which was pervaded throughout with a true spirit of Jewishness. The happy couple left the same afternoon on a motor trip to Natal.
