Mischa Elman's Final Concert

The large Colosseum Theatre should be crowded on Sunday evening when Mischa Elman, the famous violinist, will give his final concert. He will be accompanied by Vladimir Padwa, who assists him in so distinguished a manner at the piano. On Sunday evening last, Mr. Elman entranced a large audience at the Empire Theatre with his magnificent classical playing. He had to respond to encore after encore before he was finally allowed to leave.

On Sunday night he will present an entirely new programme of classical music and he is likely again to charm a great audience.

The society is a registered body under the control of the Johannesburg Board of Charities, and has been in existence for the past 21 years. Canvassers are asked to volunteer their services, for the more collectors the bigger the success is assured. Particulars may be obtained from the hon. secretary, Mr. R. Lewenthal, phone 44-5050.
