"The Good Companions."

A CLEAN REFRESHING SHOW.

"The Good Companions" Concert Party now performing in the Peninsula provides a show that is in every way clean, alive and refreshing. From beginning to end it goes with a swing and a slickness that never leave one dull for a moment, and which give at the conclusion a feeling of complete satisfaction.

King of the show, of course, is Victor Prince who is a first-class humorist and whose appearance never fails to draw a laugh. He knows his audience and he knows how to get the best out of it.

Gladys Kenyon's beautiful soprano voice is heard to advantage, particularly in her rendering of "Aye, Aye, aye," and among the male voices Len Burchell's must be given pride of place.

There is some excellent dancing in the show, and special mention must be made of the very fine "Acrobatic Feats" of Sheila Salmon, who does almost wizardly things with her body. Jean Stevens's Good Companions Ballet is very charming and is immensely popular with "Good Companions" audiences.

The rest of the cast give excellent assistance in getting the show across. The Boys of the Midnight Band are admirable accompanists as a group and noteworthy artists as individuals, whilst the other members of the Party acquit themselves more than creditably.

"The Good Companions" Concert Party is in every way worth seeing.

THE PLAZA.

Here is a modernised talking version of an old favourite in which Ruth Chatterton appeared on the stage and which Mary Pickford used as a vehicle in the silent days. Under the deft direction of Alfred Sentell it has been developed into a picture that combines all the elements of successful entertainment, and its appeal is to all ages. Janet Gaynor does full justice to a role that might have been written especially for her, and Warner Baxter and Una Merkel give splendid characterisations.

IN AND AROUND THE PENINSULA.

Rev. Bender proposed the toast of the bride and bridegroom, the latter responding. Dr. S. E. Kark proposed the toast of the bride's parents, to which Mr. Berold responded. The toast of the bridegroom's parents was proposed by Colonel Creswell and was responded to by Mr. Kuper. A presentation of a kiddish cup was then made to the bridegroom on behalf of the Chevra Kadisha Hagodol of which Mr. Kuper, father of the bridegroom is President. Mr. N. Berold, the bride's brother, presided.

During the evening Sheva Brochos were conducted by Cantor Berele Chagy, of Johannesburg.

Mr. Berold, the father of the bride, has subscribed £25 towards the Jewish National Fund in order to inscribe the name of the couple in the Golden Book.

In Brief.
